Dramatic Defence Plea Ends Adams Poison Trial

Jury Asked to Rule Widow's Death Was Inevitable

LONDON (CP)—The defence for Dr. John Bodkin Adams rested its case with dramatic suddenness today and appealed to the jury to free the 58-year-old society doctor accused of murder.

The trial has been adjourned for the weekend. It is expected to go to the jury late Monday after the prosecution finishes summing up.

Chief defence counsel Geoffrey Lawrence argued that Adams was only trying to "ease the misery" of the widow he is charged with drugging to death to inherit a chest of silver and a Rolls-Royce car.

Leaving toward the jury of 10 men and two women in Old Bailey courtroom, the defence lawyer told in a quiet voice why he did not put Adams into the witness box to tell his story of the death of Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell in Eastbourne in 1950.

Emphasizing the "strain" which he said Adams had been living under since his arrest five months ago, Lawrence declared he had decided against requiring him to "endure the ordeal" of testifying.

Lawrence said Adams' records on the Morrell case had been destroyed and that by taking the stand he would have been asked "to cast back his memory over the gulf of six years."

"At every stage there would have been the terrible realization that one failure of recollection, one inaccuracy, however innocent, would be seized on and might well be put before you as an indication of his guilt."

Lawrence said the issue was not whether Adams was a "good or bad" doctor in prescribing drugs but whether he is guilty of murder.

He said Adams had been "dying and had no more than possibly a very few weeks or a few days to live."

"Is not that a most extraordinary case, that a doctor should be accused of murdering one of his patients when she was already dying? With no intervention on his part, the end was inevitable."

Mrs. Morrell died in November, 1950. The body was cremated as she asked in her will and the ashes were scattered over the English Channel off Eastbourne where Dr. Adams had a prosperous practice among retired wealthy old folk.

Lawrence had called only two witnesses for the defence, a medical expert and a nurse. The trial, the longest in history of Old Bailey, is in its 15th day.

Lawrence opened the case for the defence only two days ago after the prosecution, led by Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, called a string of 19 witnesses to support its accusation that Adams murdered the bed-ridden widow with an overdose of drugs.

The bespectacled, portly doctor sat impassively in the prisoner's dock as his lawyer opened his final address to the jury.

Lawrence stood up, flung back his gown, thrust one hand in his trouser pocket and rested the other on a pile of legal volumes and notes.

The jury members sat motionless, their eyes rivetted on the bewigged lawyer as he told them their duty would be clear on the evidence already produced.

"We need not take up your time, or anybody else's time in calling any further evidence," he stated.

Two Suspects Held in Fatal Bar Bombing

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two signboard laborers were booked on suspicion of murder today in the setting of a gasoline fire that fatally burned six persons in a bar Thursday night.

Booked were Clyde Bates, 36, muscular boss of a three-man signboard wrecking crew, and one of his workmen, Oscar S. Brenhaug, 44.

The coroner said five persons died at the scene on a quiet street in south-central Los Angeles. A woman died later and at least five others were injured.

Police said the bomb apparently was thrown through the

WIFE-KILLING SUSPECT SUICIDES IN PRISON

MONTREAL (CP)—Edward Alexander Ven-groff, 41, charged Wednesday with the revolver shooting of his wife on a busy mid-town street, was found hanged today in his cell at Bordeaux jail.

One of his last requests had been for permission to attend the funeral of his 30-year-old estranged wife, shot Tuesday while walking to her job in Royal Victorian Hospital.

His wife, who left him two months ago saying she wanted a divorce, died an hour after being hit by four bullets, fired at close range. Before losing consciousness she gasped out a telephone number which led police to her husband.

JOINT PROJECT NOT DEAD

Civic Leaders To Try Again On Centennial

By PETE LOUDON

A new, top-level attempt was launched today to reach agreement on a mutual centennial project for Greater Victoria.

A "try-again" meeting by district municipal and government representatives will be called by Mayor Percy Scurrell.

The action came hard on the heels of Greater Victoria Centennial Committee's decision Thursday night to abandon the joint scheme.

MANY TO ATTEND

The new conference will be attended by the mayor, district reeves and members of the legislature.

The mayor said he would call the meeting when he was told a Times survey of elected officials showed general disappointment that no agreement had been reached so far.

"I would be in favor of exploring again the whole situation, this time at the reeves-mayor-member level. I think it would be a pity to go ahead with several dinky projects instead of one major one. I will try to get a committee together to work out something," the mayor stated.

WURTELE WILLING

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt had stated earlier: "I'd agree right away if the mayor would appoint a new committee to go into this matter. I'm quite willing to sit in."

He said he felt it would be "crazy" to go ahead with separate projects. He doubted Esquimalt council would approve a separate project.

Problem facing the new group stems from a provincial government promise in 1955 to provide each municipality with a grant of 60 cents per capita for a centennial year project "of lasting value and significance."

In order to receive the grant each municipality must match it and the final choice of memorial must be approved by the B.C. cabinet.

It was proposed that in metropolitan areas, different municipalities should lump together their grants for a major project.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Gracious God, why am I so filled with fear, so disturbed, so overwrought? Thou art not dead, nor is Christ, thy Son, who said, "All power is mine, both in heaven and earth." I reach up, great God, power, to touch thy throne. For help is there, and I will claim it now. Never leave me, Father. Never forsake me. My trust is in thee both now and forever; because of Christ, Amen.

FEDERAL SPENDING HITS ALL-TIME HIGH

Social Security Payments Skyrocket Ottawa Outlays

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris today tabled in the Commons further supplementary estimates totalling $94,750,000 for 1957-58, bringing total federal expenditures for the current fiscal year to a new all-time high of $5,334,000,000.

The supplementary estimates proposed today total $94,750,000 to cover budgetary proposals of increased social security payments and a boost in Maritime freight rates assistance.

The former all-time record was set in the 1943-44 war years when spending reached $5,322,000,000. The previous peacetime record, set last fiscal year ended March 31, was $5,157,000,000.

The new high this fiscal year includes about $475,000,000 in old age and other pensions not in effect when the wartime record was established.

Today's supplementary estimates included:

1. $24,500,000 for a $1-a-month

increase to certain age groups of family allowance recipients.

2. $5,000,000 to cover a proposed $6-a-month increase to $46, for old-age pensioners 70 and over.

3. $3,000,000 for the federal government's 50 per cent share of a maximum $6 increase to $46 in old-age assistance to the needy between 65 and 69, shared equally with the provinces.

4. $400,000 for a similar increase for the blind.

5. $1,000,000 for a similar increase in disabled persons' pensions.

6. $5,350,000 for increased allowances to "burned out" war veterans and dependents.

7. $14,900,000 for increased disability pensions for war veterans. The increases in family allowances become effective Sept. 1. All the other increased payments take effect July 1.

Norman Death Stirs World Outcry, U.S. 'Red Witch Hunt' Assailed

From many parts of the free world today there came bitter reaction to Thursday's suicide of Canadian Ambassador to Egypt, E. Herbert Norman.

The viewpoints expressed were almost unanimous in condemning the action of the U.S. Senate's sub-committee on internal security for releasing testimony implicating Mr. Norman had had Communist associations long after he had been cleared of such charges.

Committee Under Fire in Washington

Even in Washington, DC, the relations existing between our U.S. capital, the committee was under fire.

The Washington Post and Times Herald charged the U.S. Senate internal security sub-committee is "directly responsible for the persecution" which may have led to the suicide of Mr. Norman.

In an editorial, the newspaper accuses the sub-committee of "a most meddlesome interference in an area where they have no competence at all" and said the tragic event "ought at last" to lead the U.S. Senate "to put an effective check upon the irresponsibility" of the sub-committee.

The Washington Evening Star takes the editorial view that Norman's death was "too tragic in itself for anybody to add to it with overwrought and grossly simplified interpretations blaming it on the Senate internal security sub-committee."

The Star suggests the sub-committee had shown "decidedly poor judgment" in making public "filmy hearsay evidence" involving Mr. Norman but said it was sure "our Morris and the internal security friends in Canada will place the matter in proper perspective and not let it blight the good

It was generally accepted that this action brought about his leap to death from a Cairo building.

Following violent denunciation in the Canadian Parliament Thursday, press reaction from several countries today was bitter.

Relations Existing Between Our Two Countries

The Post accompanied its editorial with a cartoon showing a skeleton reaching into a sub-committee "he labelled 'hearsay reports' and withdrawing a folder containing the name 'Herbert Norman.' The caption read 'His Name Just Happened to Come Up.'"

The Post questioned the sub-committee's reasons "for 'dredging up in 1957' the 'discredited' accusations which a Columbia University professor had made against Mr. Norman in 1951."

"What reason was there for making public, against the state department's expressed wishes, the transcript of this hearing held in executive session?"

"In a statement which attempts without the slightest sympathy to justify the callousness of his conduct, Mr. Morris (sub-committee counsel Robert Morris) says the testimony 'may have an important bearing on our internal security.'"

"It has no bearing whatever on our internal security. Mr. Morris and the internal security sub-committee have been guilty of a most meddlesome interference..."

RCAF Plans to Fly Ashes Home

In Ottawa the Canadian government has ordered a Royal Canadian Air Force plane out of London to Cairo to fly home the ashes of the late Canadian Ambassador.

Decision as to whether or not to make use of the RCAF aircraft was left to Mrs. Norman's wishes.

"The Ambassador's widow has suffered a severe shock and was under medical care throughout Wednesday. The staff of the Canadian Embassy in Cairo, however, headed by A. R. Kilgour, the first secretary, was going everything possible to facilitate the return of the Ambassador's body to Canada."

The Egyptian government has offered all possible aid.

Funeral services for Mr. Norman at Cairo will be held Saturday at St. Andrew's Church of Scotland.

The body of Mr. Norman then will be flown to Rome for cremation. Mrs. Norman will leave Cairo within a few days to return to Canada.

Meanwhile, the Canadian government has no intention of "sending any notes of any kind" to Washington in connection with the case, a spokesman for the prime minister's office said today.

An external affairs department official said the same thing. He pointed out that External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson summed up Canada's official attitude by saying, "There's no need to make an

Background of Events in Norman Suicide

WASHINGTON (UP)—How did an ambassador of a friendly country Canada's E. Herbert Norman become involved in hearings of a senate subcommittee charged with investigating the administration of U.S. security laws?

The story began several years ago when congressional committees began delving into the Communist conquest of China after Second World War. Charges were aired that certain career state department officials did not oppose the Chinese Communists strongly, and therefore helped pave the way for their seizure of China.

Carrying this forward the senate internal security subcommittee, which has done much of the past investigating, now has begun questioning state department officials in the Middle East who were named in the earlier inquiries.

For example: Rep. Walter H. Judd (R-Minn.) testified, last May about personnel serving in the American Embassy in China in 1944.

He said that when he stopped in Chungking at that time, junior members of the staff were following what "later proved to be the Communist party line"—they wanted to ditch Chiang Kai-Shek and back the Communists to fight Japan.

"It was common conversation," said Judd, "that the leaders were the so-called four Johns: John Carter Vincent, John Stewart Service, John Paton Davies and John Emmerson."

Vincent, Service and Davies have been investigated at length and are now out of the state department.

John K. Emmerson is now counsellor—No. 2 man—in the American Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon. He was brought back to testify in a closed session March 12 and the record of the hearing was made public March 14.

Emmerson was asked about Norman. He said, he had known the Canadian since 1930 but never heard anything to indicate that he was a Communist.

But sub-committee counsel Robert Morris said the group had "quite a few security reports which have a great deal of information to the effect that he (Norman) is a Communist."

And why was Emmerson asked about Norman?

The sub-committee is understood to have several references to Norman in its files. In 1951, Prof. Karl Wittfogel of Columbia University testified that a young Canadian named Norman belonged to a New York Communist cell in prewar years.

A former state department official, Eugene Dorman, had testified that Emmerson and Norman were close associates in Japan in 1946.

HEADED UN DELEGATION
Norman by 1951 was head of Canada's UN delegation and of the American section of the external affairs ministry.

Morris also said at the March 12 hearing that Norman was once secretary of "a Communist organization" known as "American Friends of the Chinese People" and later executive secretary of its Canadian affiliate.

Morris then read a security report from an unidentified agency which said Norman associated with a Japanese named Tsuru Shigetou, who is now a lecturer at Harvard University. The report said the FBI arrested Tsuru in 1942 to send him home to Japan and that Norman approached the FBI as a high-ranking Canadian official and tried to take custody of Tsuru's papers.

JOHN PATON DAVIES
... one of Four Johns

Morris quoted the FBI as reporting the papers included a 1937 letter about a Marxist study group at Harvard which discussed a paper on "American Imperialism" by E. H. Norman.

Morris also quoted the report as saying that Norman was identified in February, 1940, as a member of the Communist party. Morris insisted that the subcommittee was not investigating the Canadian diplomat, though about half the questioning of Emmerson related to Norman.

Among Tsuru's papers was a letter about the study group addressed to William T. Parry, now an instructor at the University of Buffalo. The committee plans to call Parry to testify April 22.

Tsuru testified last week that he never joined the Communist party, though he admitted he acted, spoke and wrote like a Communist in 1936-37 while a student at Harvard.

He explained Norman's effort to get his papers as an effort by Norman, a Japanese scholar, to pick up some Japanese history books that Tsuru had left behind.

Dr. Karl Heinrich Niebyl of New York City, who allegedly helped draft some of the papers found in Tsuru's apartment, invoked the fifth amendment 44 times before the subcommittee Thursday. He refused to answer all questions about Communism, including whether he is or was a Communist.

After the first release of Emmerson's testimony and Morris' charge about Norman, the Canadian government protested, and the state department asked the subcommittee not to bring up Norman's name in public again.

Canada said Norman had been cleared of the charges. The subcommittee shortly released more testimony in which Emmerson made some corrections in his earlier statements. But he repeated that he had never heard Norman say anything indicating the Canadian was a Communist.

'SADISTIC METHODS' BLAMED FOR NORMAN DEATH

Stop 'Assassinating the Innocent' United Church Charges U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church of Canada called upon the president and Congress of the United States Thursday to stop "politicians and partisans from assassinating the characters of innocent men."

In a statement on the apparent suicide of A. Herbert Norman, Canadian Ambassador to Egypt, Dr. Ernest E. Long, secretary of the general council of the United Church, said the blame for Mr. Norman's death rests on the U.S. Senate subcommittee which accused him of being a Communist.

He accused the subcommittee of "shocking and sadistic methods" and said that "fear, hysteria and unprincipled political ambition" have carried security measures too far in the U.S.

Mr. Long said that Mr. Norman came from a family which gave church missions in Japan, outstanding leadership for two generations. He called upon the National Council of the Churches in Christ in America to hold an emergency meeting to prevent further incidents such as that which led to Mr. Norman's death.

Dr. Harold Bennett, principal of Victoria College, which Mr. Norman attended, said he felt the charges were completely false.

"If the external affairs minister is satisfied," he said, "that should be enough for anybody."

NORMAN

international incident out of this."

Mr. Norman's death left a gap in this country's small corps of experts on Far and Middle East affairs. He was considered in Ottawa and in other countries as one of the top authorities on those parts of the world.

U.K. PRESS BITTER

British morning papers give prominence to the story of Mr. Norman's death. The Daily Mail speaks in a double-column headline of a "murder-by-slander protest storm" gathering in Ottawa, and The News Chronicle publishes three stories, including one by Canadian correspondent William Stevenson under the headline: "The witch-hunters' victim."

Stevenson, a Toronto Star correspondent, says Far East diplomats had already regarded Mr. Norman as a victim of American witch-hunters. These diplomats felt that the smearing Mr. Norman suffered at Washington hearings in 1951 had forced Canada to shelve one of its best diplomats.

WARNED MACARTHUR

The News Chronicle story also recalls that Mr. Norman, a "brilliant Japanese scholar," gave "sage advice" to Gen. MacArthur before the Chinese armies swept into North Korea in November, 1950. He warned MacArthur of the possibility of invasion, the story says, but "his forebodings were dismissed with some contempt."

Later, MacArthur's aides probed into Mr. Norman's background, discovered he had friends in Peiping including a Polish American named Lizzie Epstein and his English wife Elsie, who still live in Communist China.

"Both were associated with try of missionary parents, spent his pre-university years there and headed the Canadian mission in Tokyo after the war.

The Japanese already were aroused because the Senate subcommittee last month quizzed Tsuru, a Japanese government official now lecturing at Harvard, about reports that he had Communist links during student days in the United States and about Norman, whom he had known at Harvard before the war.

JAPAN SORROWFUL

From Tokyo came word that major Japanese newspapers were expressing editorial opinions of sorrow and bitterly criticizing the "Red witch hunt."

In Japan, where Norman started his distinguished diplomatic career, the big national daily Yomiuri, which is usually pro-American, termed the recent committee summons to Prof. Shigetou Tsuru, school friend of Norman as "insolence... that can develop into a major-therm in Japan-U.S. relations."

Asahi, the largest Japanese paper, says "the U.S. Congress went too far in digging into 20-year-old events—Tsuru's friendship with Norman at Harvard."

Mainichi, another big daily, says "McCarthyism is still alive."

RECKLESSNESS

The Times of London refers in an editorial to "the terrible consequences of the committee's recklessness," and U.S. State Secretary Dulles sent Pearson a message of regret and condolences.

Norman's death excited the Japanese particularly because he had been born in that country of missionary parents, spent his pre-university years there and headed the Canadian mission in Tokyo after the war.

The Japanese already were aroused because the Senate subcommittee last month quizzed Tsuru, a Japanese government official now lecturing at Harvard, about reports that he had Communist links during student days in the United States and about Norman, whom he had known at Harvard before the war.

Only a pro-government newspaper, Sankei Jiji, defended the committee's action in regard to Norman and Tsuru. It said:

"The matter is very complicated. Blasting American witch hunting won't solve it. Tsuru and Norman both influenced the occupier's labor policy, which went too far in encouraging left movements in Japan."

LOST GOOD FRIEND

Japan has lost a "very good friend," said the Tokyo Shimbun.

Today a group of Japanese members of the Diet expressed their "absolute disgust with the repeated spiritual torture" which led Mr. Norman to commit suicide.

Rev. Howard Norman, the ambassador's brother and professor of theology at Kwansai University, said the news of his brother's death was "terrible."

Canadian scientists are playing a prominent role in cancer research. They are supported, to a large extent by the Canadian public through the Canadian Cancer Society.

EDITORIAL COMMENT ON NORMAN'S DEATH

From British United Press

Canadian newspaper editorial comment on the death of Canadian Ambassador E. Herbert Norman in Cairo Thursday, follows:

Montreal Herald—"One is moved to wonder how many other people have been driven close to the same final point of despair by these senate subcommittee proceedings? How many equally innocent Americans have suffered character and career assassination at these hands? What happened in Cairo was murder by slander indeed."

Montreal Star—"Once fear enters the heart of man, all balance, and much decency flies out of it. It was fear—the curse of our age—which destroyed Herbert Norman, our Ambassador to Cairo. These relentless inquisitors in the U.S. Senate have much to answer for. Each time they have struck the target they have smeared and besmirched a score of innocents. More than this they have created an atmosphere of distrust and fear which, again and again, has paralyzed policy and invoked international distrust."

Vancouver Herald—"He was a victim of the smears... Herbert Norman, Canadian Ambassador to Egypt, died because United States politicians had, on the flimsiest of evidence, called him a Communist. It was the deliberations of other people, far removed from his home, that caused him the mental anguish that led him, a sensitive being, to hurt himself to his death. This day, the smear technique reached its highest mark."

Montreal Gazette—"The most sinister science of the modern world is the science of disintegration. Of this science Dr. Herbert Norman was a victim. And it is a strange thing that this is the very science the Communists have developed to the highest peak of perfection. And yet some of those who claim to fight Communism have resorted to the same method."

Toronto Globe and Mail—"Canada's Ambassador to Egypt took his life in Cairo because liars and calumniators persisted in branding him as a Communist. No proofs were offered, no evidence brought forward."

Winnipeg Free Press—"Mr. Norman suffered the fate of many other innocent people. Suspicion, once aroused, clung to his name like an odious fog... When a man is destroyed by others in this cowardly fashion, murder by slander is the only proper verdict."

Ross Munro in the Vancouver Province—"I always thought he was one of the best men in the Canadian diplomatic service. He was a scholar, an intellectual and... a man of great courtesy. He could not understand the outrage perpetrated against him in Washington. The Senate subcommittee killed a fine Canadian servant."

Coast Guard Saves Disabled Fishboat

SEATTLE (AP)—A U.S. Coast Guard cutter took the disabled Seattle fishing vessel, Traveler in tow Thursday night off Vancouver Island.

The vessel called for assistance earlier Thursday when a broken connecting rod disabled the engine 20 miles south of Estevan Point, off the west coast of the Island.

Four men are aboard the $38,000, 65-foot craft. Its owner is Gunnar Ildhuso and the operator is Sigurt Aarvik, both of Seattle.

The coast guard said the cutter McLane was expected to reach Neah Bay, Wash., with the Traveler early this afternoon.

Tsuru testified last week that he never joined the Communist party, though he admitted he acted, spoke and wrote like a Communist in 1936-37 while a student at Harvard.

He explained Norman's effort to get his papers as an effort by Norman, a Japanese scholar, to pick up some Japanese history books that Tsuru had left behind.

Dr. Karl Heinrich Niebyl of New York City, who allegedly helped draft some of the papers found in Tsuru's apartment, invoked the fifth amendment 44 times before the subcommittee Thursday. He refused to answer all questions about Communism, including whether he is or was a Communist.

After the first release of Emmerson's testimony and Morris' charge about Norman, the Canadian government protested, and the state department asked the subcommittee not to bring up Norman's name in public again.

Canada said Norman had been cleared of the charges. The subcommittee shortly released more testimony in which Emmerson made some corrections in his earlier statements. But he repeated that he had never heard Norman say anything indicating the Canadian was a Communist.

The Japanese already were aroused because the Senate subcommittee last month quizzed Tsuru, a Japanese government official now lecturing at Harvard, about reports that he had Communist links during student days in the United States and about Norman, whom he had known at Harvard before the war.

Only a pro-government newspaper, Sankei Jiji, defended the committee's action in regard to Norman and Tsuru. It said:

"The matter is very complicated. Blasting American witch hunting won't solve it. Tsuru and Norman both influenced the occupier's labor policy, which went too far in encouraging left movements in Japan."

Hospital Insurance Plans Move Ahead

(From Times News Services)

The House has approved in principle legislation enabling the federal government to enter into share-the-cost agreements with the provinces for a national hospital insurance plan.

The measure received speedy second reading—all parties agreeing on the principle of the bill—but came under close clause-by-clause scrutiny by the opposition which urged changes in certain details.

For example, Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre) said the government should revise its policy—written into the bill—that the national plan will come into effect only when six provinces representing a majority of Canadians agree to sign.

So far, five provinces—British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Newfoundland—have agreed to enter the plan. They represent more than 50 per cent of the population.

Mr. Knowles argued that for all practical purposes the federal requirement has been met by the five agreeing provinces, since they represent a majority of the provinces. Under the plan, the federal government is committed to pay half the insurance costs for standard ward care in general hospitals and diagnostic services.

Mr. Martin said the federal government will negotiate with the councils of the Yukon and the Territories as if they were provinces.

Replied Mr. Harkness: "I hope this government will not force the Northwest Territories into this scheme and thus force onto the non-Eskimo and non-Indian population the burden for hospital care for the whole population."

Should Pay 80%, Contends CCF Whip

Mr. Knowles contended that in view of the fact the central government takes the major share of the Canadian taxation dollar, it should offer to pay 80 per cent—instead of 50 per cent—of the plan.

Claude Ellis (CCF, Regina) said the government should have proposed a general health insurance plan.

Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary North) protested against an indication by Health Minister Martin—an affirmative nodding of the head—that the 6,000 white population of the Yukon and Northwest Territories would hear the hospital insurance costs for the 6,000 Indians and 6,000 Eskimos in the areas now paid by the federal government.

In his budget speech March 14, Finance Minister Harris termed the concession a "standard deduction" which can be made in lieu of claiming deductions for medical expenses, charitable donations and membership dues of unions and professional groups.

Taxpayers still will be able to claim deductions over $100 for such expenses, if they provide vouchers to prove the full amount. If they make such a claim, the automatic $100 deduction does not apply.

All donations for charity—up to certain limits—and union and professional dues are tax-exempt. Medical expenses are deductible only when they exceed three per cent of taxable income.

Mr. Knowles said he welcomes the new proposal as far as it goes. It would enable many people to get credit for small medical expenses.

H. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West) described a proposal to allow income tax deductions for self-employed persons' contributions to pension funds as "a measure of fair play" that would benefit about 500,000.

The Senate approved without debate Thursday an 80-nation statute setting up an agency for the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Senator Donald Cameron (L-Alberta), explaining the measure, said it was based on President Eisenhower's "atoms for peace" proposal to the United Nations in 1953. It was "one of the most constructive and hopeful phases of the work of the United Nations."

Already signed by 80 nations, it will come into effect when ratified by the governments of 18 countries, including Canada, France, the United Kingdom, the United States and Russia. The statute now goes to the House for final Canadian parliamentary ratification.

Neuberger said his proposal, introduced in a form of a resolution, was "compelled" by Monday's U.S. Supreme Court decision refusing to review protests against the licensing of the Idaho Power Company to build three low-level dams on the Snake River, and by the recent Canadian announcement that it is prepared to spend $300,000,000 in developing the upper Columbia River and its tributaries.

The proposed agency would have jurisdiction over all international rivers, or tributaries which contribute to the flow of such rivers, in the area north of the 42nd parallel (the Oregon-California border) where waters flow into the Pacific Ocean or Bering Sea. Subject to such a commission, Neuberger said, would be such Canadian projects as Mica Creek and Arrow Lakes (Murphy Creek), proposed U.S. dams at Libby, Mont., and the Similkameen in Washington State, and the Taiya project which would divert Yukon River waters to tidewater.

Tough Bargaining

IN DOMESTIC POLITICS THE probable consequences of the Canadian Government's policy on the Columbia River are clear enough—electrical power will be developed, at minimum cost, under public ownership. For Mr. Bennett can hardly reject Ottawa's offer to pay a large part of the cost of damming the river and distributing its electricity.

But the results in international politics are even more important. In short, the Federal Government has pulled the rug from under Mr. Bennett's plan to let the American interests dam the Columbia and secure a large part of its electricity.

The basic quarrel between Victoria and Ottawa is now fully clarified.

Mr. Bennett (as in the abortive Kaiser dam scheme) would allow American interests to build the master Columbia dam at Mica Creek and then present it to British Columbia "free".

In return, American power plants, south of the border, would vastly increase their output of electricity, once the upper reaches of the river were controlled by the dam, or dams. The Americans would keep most of these downstream benefits and we would export electricity on a huge scale in the form of water.

The Federal Government will never agree to this alienation of our natural resources. It is opposed to power exports however they may be disguised.

Therefore, in its present negotiations with the United States, Canada will insist on securing a large part, perhaps half, of the extra power produced in the United States as a result of the Canadian dams upstream. And to make this possible it is prepared to invest heavily in a publicly-owned power development in British Columbia.

Mr. Bennett may not like these arrangements, though he has confined himself so far to an attack on the Federal Government for revealing its plans to the press before he heard about them officially. But in the end Mr. Bennett cannot alienate the Columbia's powers even if he rejects the Federal Government's offer of financial help.

Only the Federal Government can permit or prohibit power exports in the form of water. As in the case of the proposed Kaiser dam, the Federal Government can cancel any provincial scheme affecting the flow of an international river.

Ottawa's policy was not directed only at the British Columbia Government. It was also directed at the Government of the United States.

Ottawa is saying, in the polite language of diplomacy, that it intends to drive a hard bargain with the United States on the key issue of downstream benefits.

In announcing the new Federal policy, Mr. Sinclair said that Canadians should stand together in dealing with their powerful neighbor and demonstrate, as in the case of the St. Lawrence Seaway, that they could build their own public works, if necessary, without foreign assistance; whereas Mr. Bennett would prefer to call in American capital and reward it with Canadian electricity.

Anyway, so long as the present Federal Government is in office, Mr. Bennett cannot duplicate the Kaiser dam project at Mica Creek. The federal policy of refusing to export power stands beyond his reach.

These things are easily understood. It is difficult, however, to understand the latest statements of Mr. Grauer, the able head of the B.C. Power Corporation.

Naturally disappointed to find that his company cannot possess the Columbia, which probably will be placed under public ownership, Mr. Grauer says he fears a power shortage in the Vancouver area. A public development on the Columbia, he believes, will be unnecessarily delayed and therefore he must consider the establishment of thermal plants whose electricity would be relatively expensive.

If there is any delay it will not result from the policy of public ownership. It will result from prolonged negotiations between Ottawa and Washington on the issue of downstream benefits. Even if the B.C. Power Corporation, or any private concern, were given possession of the Columbia the international negotiations would not be speeded up in the least.

With good sense in Ottawa and Washington, the negotiations should not take very long and meanwhile the Federal and British Columbia Governments should agree on a plan of development to be started the moment the negotiations are complete.

Then perhaps eight or ten years would be required to build the Mica Creek dam. Before that time a power famine might well develop in Vancouver but it can be prevented by quick development of smaller dams south of Mica Creek.

While power is quickly available at several points it would be folly indeed to embark on costly thermal plants.

Peace Breezes Over Formosa

WHILE INTERNATIONAL storms rage in other parts of the world, relative calm seems to prevail now on the Formosa Strait.

With it come peace rumors affecting the two Chinas. The Nationalist Government's talk of invading the China mainland has apparently been discarded. United States Defence Commander, Vice-Admiral Stuart H. Ingersoll, in a statement from Okinawa, has bluntly refuted that theme by saying the Nationalist Army is being trained for defence only, not offence.

There is no formal suggestion that Chiang Kai-shek and his adherents have considered the communist offer to permit Nationalist Formosa to become an autonomous province within the new China. The offer, however, has been heard.

Should the United States effect serious cuts in aid to Formosa, or should it show any inclination to recognize Peking—a course still violently opposed by many influential U.S. public figures—the proposal might sound more appealing to Nationalist ears.

Beyond that, Formosa is sensitive to the attitude of overseas Chinese who, however much they might dislike communism, have had occasion to notice what Peking can do for them that Taipei cannot. The success of Premier Chou En-lai in negotiating a dual citizenship for Indonesia's 2,000,000 Chinese is remembered.

With Vietnam taking action to discriminate against residents who are not Vietnamese, and with the position of resident Chinese uncertain when Malay gains its new status, these are important considerations for the overseas Chinese who have previously given aid and comfort to the Nationalists.

Such conditions color the peace rumors—though it should be emphasized that they are still rumors. "But," as Mr. Gordon Walker, a distinguished U.S. newspaperman writes from Hong Kong "many (Nationalists)—especially those who have not amassed a comfortable pension fund in Swiss or American banks—might estimate realistically that a job as an official in an autonomous Formosan government was preferable to slow but sure political extinction."

Why Delay the Benefits?

REPORTS OF THE U.S. PUBLIC Health Service show that the speed with which communities in that country are adopting fluoridation of their water supplies is increasing each year.

In 1956, fluoridation was made available to more than seven million additional persons. During the period 1951 to 1955, the average increase was four millions a year. In the first three months of this year, 55 new communities have adopted fluoridation. The total of persons in the United States enjoying the benefits of this scientific progress at March 1, was 31,416,000, living in 1,492 communities.

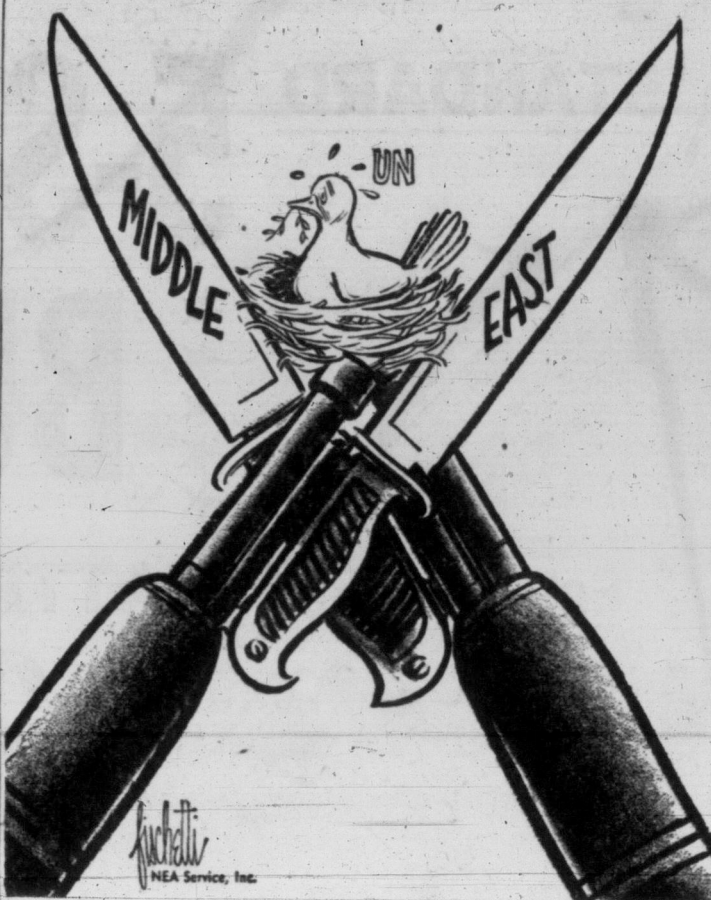

These are figures which cannot be ignored by opponents of fluoridation. They indicate that, like most new ideas, fluoridation of public water supplies is approached with hesitation at first, but that as time goes on and the weight of expert opinion is felt, the pace of acceptance increases.

As Dr. J. Mather, professor of public health at the University of British Columbia says, fluoridation of water supplies "is the most important public health discovery since diphtheria toxoid." He sees it as "the first real break" in man's fight against tooth decay.

The day will come when people will look back at the pre-fluoridation era and wonder why the step was so delayed. Those who oppose it will be regarded in the same light as those who fought antiseptic methods, vaccination, the covering of open drains, and other health progress. How long will Victoria deny itself the benefits of fluoridation?

A Question of Identity

A NOTED Vancouver writer and humorist has commented on the magnificent display of paintings of bird life in the latest issue of Maclean's Magazine. The pictures, from the brush of Victoria's Fenwick Lansdowne, draw Mr. Nicol's praise. But they also evoke a complaint. Excellent as the paintings are, he says, Mr. Lansdowne's birds bear no relation to the birds Mr. Nicol sees. And this, he asserts, has long been a problem with him. Even the celebrated Audubon's reproductions never included the birds Mr. Nicol sees. He sees birds with white beards and red beards; with red, white and blue stripes and sometimes spats. But nowhere in the birdbooks does these specimens appear.

Tobin

I can fully share the feeling of frustration that this sort of thing produces. But my problem is not birds. I haven't really seen any birds since I quit staring around quite a few years back. No, my problem is with people. None of them seem to look the way they ought to. And far too many of them, instead of looking like themselves, look like people who look like them.

This is the sort of thing I run into. You've met a woman, say, a number of times. Each time she wore a hat. Then some day you see her without the hat. "Why," you say to yourself, "there's a woman who looks just like Mrs. X." And Mrs. X rightly feels offended that you pass her without further recognition.

Two Other Guys

Or suppose there's some burly chap you speak to on the bus all winter. Some summer day on the beach you come upon a rather frail fellow in a bathing suit and think, "If it wasn't for the body I'd swear that was Joe Doakes." And you walk on. Of course, it is Joe, and he wonders what's got into you that you can't give him a civil greeting.

The truth is that a good many people are very elusive in appearance. It takes very little change of costume, hat or facial expression to transform them from familiar persons into strangers who somewhat resemble the person you know but who of course cannot be him.

Once you get this idea in your head, you find the world is full of look-alikes. It's not just a matter of turning up for lectures and filling up notebooks. Examinations are not just a test of memory of what the professor said; they are not even just a matter of hard work. No. What higher education aims at is to teach you to think clearly and to think for yourself—critically, perhaps, even of the professor—on the basis of communicated facts and methods of getting at the true facts. The words "communicated" and "getting at the truth" are not just idle phrases.

—Professor Samuel Florence, who held the Chair of Commerce at the University of Birmingham for 37 years.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"THEY SURE SMELL BETTER NOW! HUH, DAD?"

From Our Files

April 5, 1897 — Great interest is being taken in the proposed visit to the fort at Macaulay Point on Good Friday of the men of the First Battalion. A preparatory drill will be held tomorrow.

April 5, 1917 — Lionel Barrymore and Grace Valentine are appearing at the Royal Victoria Theatre in the movie "Dorian's Divorce."

April 5, 1937 — Premier Pattullo today took over the portfolio of the Attorney-General after Hon. Gordon Sloan had tendered his resignation. The oath was administered by Lieut.-Gov. E. W. Hamber.

April 5, 1957 — The Beck hearings are also likely to have important consequences. One possible consequence was suggested by Sen. Irving Ives of New York, when he warned Beck that the open shop for union labor might be "the upshot of what you are doing today."

Already, some eighteen states have passed the so-called "right-to-work laws" which gravely weaken labor's bargaining position by outlawing the union shop. Until now, despite a concerted drive by conservative interests (spearheaded by former Congressman Fred Hartley of Taft-Hartley fame) the unions have been able to head off right-to-work legislation in most of the important industrial states.

Pensioners and Bingo

Recently mention was made in our local papers of a raid on a bingo game, and very prominently pensioners were singled out as being participants.

Now I am not a pensioner and I am very thankful I have a comfortable warm apartment, but I have very many sincere friends who are on pension, and my heart breaks to hear so many of them telling of their cold cheerless rooms; and how lonely they are. Is it then any wonder when they have an extra dollar to spare that they go to these places where for a couple of hours they are warm, and comfortable, and meet old friends?

Surely when people are old, and through no fault of their own, they have to accept a pension, they should not be deprived of a little pleasure like a game of bingo. I wonder how many of us would like to be told how, and where, to spend our money.

We Canadians pride ourselves that we live in a free country, where we practice "Live and let live."

FAIRPLAY

Money in the Bank

I have read with great interest your letter to Dr. Axel Wenner-Gren. Actually, this is the best letter of its kind I have seen, and I have made it a point to study this matter from its commencement.

My opinion (and it appears to be the opinion of everyone with whom I have talked) is that the Rocky Mountain Trench natural wealth is precisely like money in the bank for the future residents of British Columbia, and that there is no real need to hurry about the disposal of it to anyone, and that when the time is right, and that particular natural resource store should be tapped, why should it not be tapped by a Canadian firm, or at least a firm, as you suggest, of British origin.

I notice that the run of people feel so entirely helpless to know which way to turn for help to bring this whole subject out in the open. They feel that a matter of this importance should be put to the vote of the whole province, and yet do not know which way to go about forcing this issue, or something as effective, with the government.

The majority of people up here are of the opinion that Bennett's government are going to hand this deal over regardless of how the people as a whole feel about it. How, in your opinion, can we demand to know the whole truth about the matter before it is too late? Would a continual barrage of letters to the principal papers in B.C. do any good?

Your attitude towards this matter has caused such a lot of favorable comment and constructive discussion that we all feel it is the first very real spearhead, and should be followed up and driven home by every thinking person in the country.

Provincial Finance

The sole reason for imposing the sales tax originally was to finance hospital insurance (two per cent), and relieve hard-pressed municipalities, (one per cent). It was not meant to be a source of revenue for the provincial government.

It is fantastic that politicians, under a so-called democratic system could transform it in five years to what it is being used for today.

Every citizen who has built a home in B.C. in the last four years should besiege the legislative buildings armed with a tomahawk, looking for scalps.

FROM WASHINGTON

Aftermath of Beck

THE Teamsters Union hearings on Capitol Hill have been wonderful theatre. They had everything—suspense, emotion, spicy revelations, comic relief, and above all a superb cast of characters. Dave Beck, Teamsters' boss, has been brilliantly cast in the central role. His pink pate positively glittered with righteous indignation and injured innocence as he lunged arrogantly back at his Senatorial tormentors, like a snarling badger beset by a terrier pack. Sen. McClellan's dry monotone had precisely the proper "dragne" intonation as he forced the infuriated Beck again and again to take refuge in the Fifth Amendment.

The supporting players were equally well cast. Committee counsel Robert Kennedy, for example, has been fine as the idealistic young crusader. Even Sen. McCarthy has done a reasonably convincing imitation of McCarthy, although the old, familiar growl sounds, somehow, like a voice from the grave.

Wider Significance

But, although a political reporter these days often finds himself poaching on the preserve of the drama critic, the Beck hearings have been more than good theatre.

They have been comparable in some ways to the Pecera investigations in the last year of Herbert Hoover's Presidency, which exposed the arrogance and irresponsibility of an important segment of big business, and set the backdrop of the New Deal.

The Beck hearings are also likely to have important consequences. One possible consequence was suggested by Sen. Irving Ives of New York, when he warned Beck that the open shop for union labor might be "the upshot of what you are doing today."

Already, some eighteen states have passed the so-called "right-to-work laws" which gravely weaken labor's bargaining position by outlawing the union shop. Until now, despite a concerted drive by conservative interests (spearheaded by former Congressman Fred Hartley of Taft-Hartley fame) the unions have been able to head off right-to-work legislation in most of the important industrial states.

But after Beck's amazingly arrogant performance, it will be a brave state legislator who will dare to vote against right-to-work laws. There is also a real chance that Federal right-to-work legislation will pass this Congress, in the form of an amendment to the Civil Rights Bill, if the bill reaches the floor.

In the Beck-produced atmosphere, such an amendment might well pass. Again, if the "clean elections" bill reaches the floor, an amendment sharply restricting all labor's political activities will certainly be introduced, probably by Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. And again, such an amendment would have an excellent chance of passing, thanks to Beck.

Democrats Worried

This suggests why the Northern Democrats are almost as worried by the performance as Beck's fellow labor chiefs—this despite the fact that Beck and most of his cohorts have supported the Republicans.

Republicans like to charge that the Northern Democrats are supported by an immense slush fund provided by the unions. Actually, under the table money from labor for Democratic candidates is a small fraction of the political contributions of business, most of which goes to Republicans.

But it is true that Democratic candidates in many Northern industrial states, notably Michigan, Wisconsin and western Pennsylvania, are greatly, and in some cases wholly, dependent on labor money and other help from labor. Even without legislation to restrict labor's political activities, Democrats in such areas will suffer.

Caution Likely

They will be hurt because labor will be very cautious in the political atmosphere created by the Teamsters' investigation about taking an active political role.

The Northern Democrats will also be hurt simply because they are identified in the public mind with union labor, just as the Republicans are identified with business.

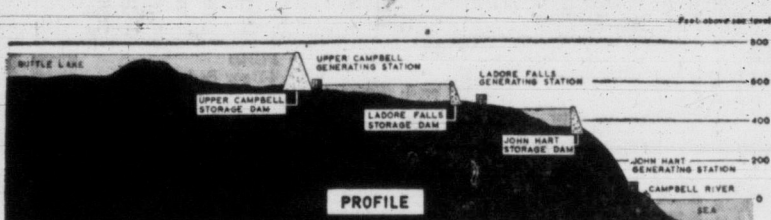

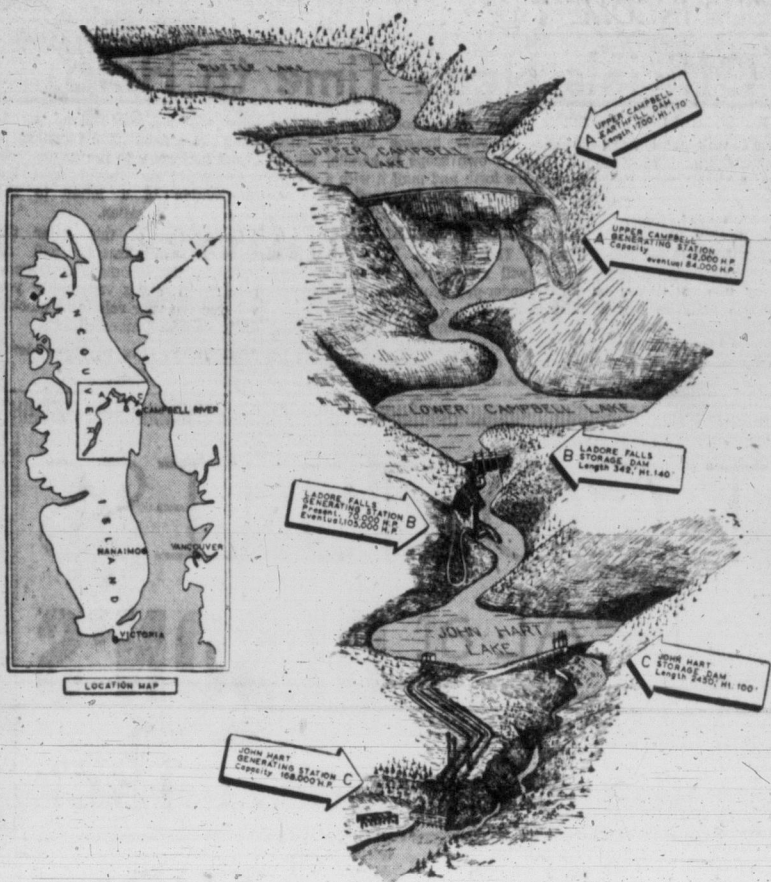

Predictions are even being heard on Capitol Hill that the McClellan investigation, especially if it continues to put on a good show for months to come, will cost the Democrats control of the House in 1958. However that may be, the arresting drama on Capitol Hill is almost certain to have far-reaching political after-effects.

HARD HAT SAVES WORKER'S LIFE

CAMPBELL RIVER — Donald Rust, Vancouver, says he owes his life to his hard hat. An employee of Anderson Blawie Co., Rust fell 24 feet Thursday while working on a scaffold at a construction project at Duncan Bay.

Rust received knee injuries and cuts to his face and a black eye where his hat pressed into his forehead. But he said he was sure the hat saved his life.

Brannan Lake School Supervisor Remanded

NANAIMO — A supervisor at Brannan Lake Boys' School, Jack Southern, 39, has been remanded on charges of creating a public mischief and causing a disturbance by fighting.

The first charge read "that he caused a police officer to begin investigations by making false statements by saying he was unlawfully assaulted by at least four people, thereby accusing some other person of having committed an offence."

Southern had charged that four youths "jumped" him in Nanaimo's Chinatown as he unlocked his parked car, knocked him down and kicked him. He said the attack took place on March 19.

Surveys by the company have been under way for about six months, and preliminary work preparatory to driving the tunnel was started about three months ago.

The company has taken over one bunkhouse owned by Canadian Pacific Sound Lumber and Timber Co. Ltd. as a private dwelling, and has its crew quartered in other buildings owned by the logging firm.

Company officials said "future operations will depend on the results of work now in progress."

The present project actually is the culmination of considerable field work by Sunloch Mines Ltd., which was owned by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. of Trail, and Gabbro Mines Ltd., which were controlled by Noranda.

Last year the two exploration companies were merged to form Sunro Mines Ltd., and the larger firms, both giants in the Canadian mining field, retain their interests in the new company.

A crew of 25 men, headed by foreman Stan Hodgson, has started the tunnel at a point about midway between the village here and the B.C. Electric forebay, or headpond, where water enters the steel flume that convey it to the generators in the B.C.E. power house.

The tunnel will measure nine feet by nine feet, and will keep the crew at work for about a year.

Nanoose Woman Dies in Crash

NANAIMO — A 51-year-old woman was killed Thursday night when a car in which she was a passenger collided with the rear of another car on an overhead bridge at Nanoose, 18 miles north of here.

Police identified the victim as Mrs. William Joseph Dornan of Nanoose. Her 59-year-old husband was in fair condition in hospital here with internal injuries.

Police said the Dornans' car apparently hit the rear of a car driven by Joseph Mellor of Vancouver. Mr. Mellor escaped injury.

A recent survey conducted by an independent organization for the Canadian Cancer Society shows that although 30 per cent of the women of Canada hold the erroneous opinion that cancer is never-cured, more and more women are becoming aware of the symptoms of the disease and realize the importance of early diagnosis and treatment.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY WESTWOOD

Strathcona Park Scheme Takes in Scenic Plateau

Opening up of Strathcona Park—including Forbidden Plateau—was forecast Thursday by Earle Westwood, first minister of the new provincial department of recreation and conservation.

The government now is investigating means of bringing Forbidden Plateau into the park, Mr. Westwood said. It was left out when the boundaries of the park were drawn but should be a part of it.

A special act passed at the recent legislature session placed Strathcona Park in the same category as other parks of the province. It previously had been governed by a special statute.

Mutual Respect Is Master Key To U.S.-Canada Relationships

SEATTLE—Most Canadians welcome U.S. investment and are prepared to offer it a generous measure of freedom, Stuart Keate, publisher of The Victoria Daily Times, said Thursday night.

"But that freedom also carries with it certain responsibilities," Mr. Keate told his audience of daily and weekly working newspaper men from Northern Idaho, Oregon, Washington and B.C., attending a University of Washington seminar.

"All of us must exercise our freedom with due regard for the rights, persons, property and interest of others," he said. The thousands of U.S. subsidiary companies now operating in Canada "owe it to themselves as well as to become good citizens and partners in our communities."

For what they are: the expressions of intelligent, peace-loving people who live beside each other, who happen to live under different systems who may have somewhat different sets of values, but who respect the other man's point of view, regardless of size or wealth. For the past 50 years, it has been known that Canada possessed vast riches that could easily be grasped by the aggressive and ambitious. "The fact that the United States has not moved to expropriate this treasure must surely be the greatest proof of America's integrity," Mr. Keate said. "To those who cry about United States imperialism, Canada stands as a startling rebuff."

Benefits to Both Countries

Mr. Keate said the two fields he knew best—newsprint and oil—have reaped rich rewards for U.S. investors, but have also contributed greatly to Canadian communities.

Speaking on the topic, "Your Canadian Neighbor," Mr. Keate said the "minor irritations and pin-pricks" between the two countries will continue.

"But we should not let these occasional, honest differences becloud the essential fact of our long and honorable friendship. We should recognize them

Casey Seeks Nomination For Socreds

Joseph Casey, Saanich councillor and a former reeve of the municipality, confirmed today that he will seek the Social Credit federal nomination in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Mr. Casey was elected reeve in 1949 and held office until 1955 when he was defeated by Arthur Ash. He was returned to council in a by-election last month.

A B.C. Electric line superintendent, Mr. Casey is 61.

Other candidates for the nomination are John D. Johnson, city pharmacist, and Herman Williams, Colwood mink rancher.

Ladner Kinsman Slated to Head National Body

VANCOUVER (CP)—Leader Clubs will shift to British Columbia this year, following the ship of Canada's Kinsmen national convention in Montreal Aug. 28-Sept. 1.

The announcement was made in Vancouver by Ken McConnell of Ladner, vice-president of the 10,500-member association of Kinsmen Clubs of Canada, which this week is observing National Kinsmen Week.

At the convention, Mr. McConnell will take over as president of the national organization. Most of his executive then will be drawn from Kinsmen clubs in B.C.'s lower mainland area.

Present national president is Irv Cantor of Leamington, Ont., and national officers with the exception of vice-president McConnell and past president Al Dubensky of Edmonton are from clubs in that area.

AFL-CIO Hearing May 6 Set On Teamsters

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Teamsters' Union was invited Thursday to defend itself against corruption charges at an AFL-CIO hearing May 6.

Al Hayes, chairman of the AFL-CIO ethical practices committee, said the teamsters would be given a hearing if it is the wish of union officers.

Last Friday the AFL-CIO executive council ordered an investigation of the union on the basis of derogatory information turned up by Senate racketeers.

Private Liquor Clubs Lock Out Employees

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—Five private drinking clubs in the city locked out their employees Thursday.

The move followed picketing of two clubs Saturday because of a dispute between union bartenders and management. Members of the Club and Cabaret Workers Union, Local 740, are attempting to force club managers to pay an extra three cents an hour towards the employees' welfare fund.

The union struck Saturday against the Railwaymen's Club and the Gulf Club. Thursday the Arctic Pacific Athletic, Quadra, Irish-Canadian and West Coast Clubs locked out their employees.

Some clubs, however, are offering "limited service" with managerial staffs serving members.

TEAMSTER MERGER ATTACKED

VANCOUVER—The validity of a merger between an Okanagan fruit workers union and the Teamsters Union was attacked in Supreme Court Wednesday.

Alex B. MacDonald, counsel for the Federation of Fruit and Vegetable Workers' Union, said the teamsters used misrepresentation and unlawful and unfair means to take over the federation.

The federation is asking the court to set aside a resolution adopted in January, 1956, to merge the federation with Local 48 of the Teamsters. The federation also is suing Local 48 for restoration of its funds and assets.

3 YEARS FOR "JOKE"

VANCOUVER—A man who threatened a taxi driver with a knife and wound up giving him a $10 tip was convicted of attempted robbery Thursday and sentenced to three years in jail. Magistrate Oscar Orr, in passing sentence on Robert Jerry Histed, 26, said "This is a case where the court should have the power to whip."

Taxi driver Robert Cowan said he picked up Histed Feb. 26. "He asked me to stop and then he pulled a knife and demanded my money," said Cowan. "I grabbed his hand and got the knife away from him. He then told me it was a joke and said he had made a bet with somebody. He left me his watch and said he was going to collect the bet and gave me a $10 tip."

$6,000 SETTLEMENT

VANCOUVER—An out-of-court settlement for $6,000 and costs was accepted Thursday by John Beaulieu, 20, in a Supreme Court suit for traffic injury damages. Beaulieu was struck by another car while he fixed a flat tire on his car Nov. 28, 1955. He was in coma 21 days. Beaulieu sued George LaPointe, owner of the other car, and David C. Jonason, driver.

ASK INDEPENDENT BOARD

VANCOUVER—Unionists here have recommended that an independent board be set up to administer B.C.'s Fair Employment Practices Act at present administered by an appointee of the minister of labor.

The recommendation came from seventh annual institute on race relations, sponsored by the labor committee on human rights, the Vancouver Labor Council, and the B.C. Federation of Labor.

$12,372 DAMAGES

VANCOUVER—Damages of $12,372 have been awarded in Supreme Court to John Papéz for injuries he suffered four years ago while standing in a streetcar. Holmes and Wilson Trucking Co. Ltd. and their truck driver, Max Neumeier, were held liable for Papéz' injuries Feb. 2, 1953, when the streetcar was in collision with a truck and semi-trailer.

PIONEER QUALIFICATIONS

VERNON—Lance Whittaker of Victoria, member of the B.C. Centennial Committee outlined here Wednesday the qualifications for a pioneer to be honored as part of B.C. centennial celebrations in 1958.

Mr. Whittaker said one qualification might be that the person had been a resident of the province when it entered confederation in 1871. Another qualifying year might be 1888, he said, when the first train arrived from the east.

TO LIVE IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER—Four children whose parents were killed in an air crash in Colombia will be brought here to live. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Dyck, Canadian Menonite missionaries who died March 9 in the crash of a Colombian airliner in the Andes Mountains.

'NOBODY SATISFIED'—GREGORY

New Municipal Act 'Hurried', City MLA Tells Laurier Club

George Gregory, Victoria Liberal MLA, claimed Thursday night that "nobody is satisfied" with the new B.C. Municipal Act.

"It was brought in too hurriedly without sufficient consultation with those affected," Mr. Gregory told a Laurier Club meeting.

Because it was rushed, the draughtsmanship of the new act was not good and a number of amendments should have been made.

The government, however, had accepted only one of 14 amendments put forward by the Liberals and had turned down a motion to hold the act over for six months for further study.

QUERIES DIRECTORSHIP

Mr. Gregory said the government should have discussed more fully with the individual municipalities the important changes brought about by new sections in the act.

Reviewing the past legislative session, the Liberal member criticized Einar Gunderson's directorship on the B.C. Wenner-Gren Development Co.

The government had taken

John Sambrooke, 3591 Savannah, $30 for speeding and $25 for driving without a licence.

Donald K. Siren, 560 Henry, Sidney, $15, for allowing a minor to drive without a licence.

John Robert Bourke, 2333 Blanshard, $25, for violating a driver's licence restriction by having no liability insurance.

In-city court Wednesday:

Frederick H. Stephenson, 150 Maddock, $50 and licence suspension for careless driving.

Henry W. Gable, 1607 Carnosun, $30 for driving without a licence, $20 for speeding over 30 and $5 for proceeding against a red light.

Ernest A. Cottle, 355 Robertson, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving.

Charles M. Nelles, 1999 Lansdowne, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving.

Richard K. Bowles, 1813 Quadra, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving.

Donald L. Hansen, 1759 Newton, $25 for failing to yield the right of way.

Glenna Marie Murray, 3052 Admirals, $15 for failing to yield the right of way in a crosswalk with school patrol flags out.

the stand on the dismissal of legislative law clerk W. Berkeley Monteith that it must have "disinterested advice" from its officials, and should have assumed the same position in regard to Mr. Gunderson.

Turning to the allegations made by accountant Charles W. Eversfield involving former lands and forests minister R. E. Sommers, Mr. Gregory said there was precedent for tabling the RCMP report on the matter.

He referred to the police report into the Petawawa "horses on the payroll" scandal which was made public by the federal government four years ago.

Despite this, Attorney-General Bonner had stated he would never release the report of former RCMP Inspector W. J. Butler.

Mr. Gregory asked why the attorney-general had ordered a police investigation rather than a judicial inquiry as he had in connection with the charges made by former Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson.

"Was he afraid of what the report would disclose?" Mr. Gregory asked. "Did he make up his mind after he had seen the police report not to release it?"

NATURAL WAY TO OVERCOME THE CONSTIPATION HABIT

Millions do—why not you?

Try All-Bran with Milk

Natural food bulk in effective cereal form

It's easy to slip into bad habits, isn't it? And usually so difficult to break them.

The constipation habit, for example, often begins with careless eating. Too many prepared foods lack the natural food bulk our bodies require daily for normal functioning. Then in haste we turn to nostrums that frequently fail because they do not restore the bulk we need.

If you are one of these unhappy people with the constipation habit, give nature a chance and try Kellogg's All-Bran. This good-tasting cereal supplies all the natural laxative bulk you need daily to avoid irregularity.

In the 40 years since W. K. Kellogg originated All-Bran, it has literally helped millions. He improved the flavor and eating qualities of the bran while retaining its natural effectiveness. Indeed, many people with no irregularity enjoy the old-fashioned bran muffin flavor of this cereal over any other.

All-Bran is also a food of high-nutritional value. And served with milk (hot or cold) it is an aid to health and regularity.

If All-Bran sounds too simple a way to solve your constipation problem, do this: Eat half a cup of All-Bran with milk every morning (or at night) for 10 days. See if the constipation habit doesn't disappear as naturally as it came.

If not completely satisfied, return the empty carton and get twice what you paid. That's a promise from Kellogg's, London, Ontario.

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY

BITS, SCRIBBLES AND DRIBBLES

The thing that Marcel Pelletier feared most came true Tuesday night in Seattle.

On Saturday night, after the Cougars had been eliminated by the New Westminster Royals, Marcel told Western Hockey League president Al Leader that he had no wish to join Seattle Americans as substitute goalie for Emile Francis.

Naturally, there was some letdown over his own club's loss, and at that time, Pelletier probably didn't want to see goalie pads for a long time.

But most of all, Pelletier said, "All season long, Francis has been the big man behind Seattle. He's had a terrific year and the fans there love him. But in the last couple of weeks, when they lost Senick and Kuzma, Seattle was just about the weakest team in the league. If I go and play for them and we don't win, they'll hate me in Seattle."

VALLIERE

Times Open medalist Bill McCall got a phone call this week from his 20-year-old nephew, Jimmy McCall, Jr., Bill's opponent in the first round of match play Sunday.

Not at all prepared to holler "Uncle" at the prospect he faces, young Jim advised Uncle Bill, "I wouldn't bring more than three clubs next Sunday. No use getting tired out for nothing because you've had it."

Pat Horgan, city basketball promoter, has every right to puff out his chest at the personal letter he received from Abe Saperstein, major domo of the Harlem Globetrotters.

Abe, a millionaire several times over but still basically a humble and grateful man, wrote to Pat, "May I, at this time, extend to you my humble appreciation for the efforts on your part that made this jaunt through the Pacific one of the finest trips ever made in the 30-year history of the Harlem Globetrotters basketball organization and sealed away in our storehouse of memories are thoughts of your graciousness at all times."

That's big praise from a big man.

And is it too late to say a word of praise here for Ross Valliere? Last Saturday night, Ross called the best game we have seen any WHL referee call this season and he did it in a crucial game where one bad call could have swung the semifinal series. But the Nanaimo smoothie stayed on top of the play, and had the game in the palm of his hand from whistle to whistle. Any time he chooses to become a full-time referee, he could squash a lot of the complaints against WHL officiating.

And did you know that Cougars' old pro defenceman Bill Davidson has now played 451 consecutive league and playoff games with never a minute off for injuries?

There's a competitor for you, Buster.

And did you know further that in losing to New Westminster in the semifinals, Cougars outscored the Royals, 7-6, and three of Royals goals were scored while the Cougars were a man short?

Which proves statistics mean absolutely nothing.

Speaking statistically again, the Calgary Stampede drew everyone in the Western Hockey League this year but still were down from last season.

The Stampede tore up 157,660 tickets this season, 147 less than last year.

Issues Warning to Dog Owners

Bob Sinclair, acting inspector of the Vancouver Island detachment of the B.C. game department, today reminded dog owners that it is illegal to allow dogs to molest game birds during the nesting season.

"We will prosecute anyone we find allowing a dog to run loose in places where game birds are usually found," said Sinclair.

Game regulations state that

Boxla Kids Called

All players interested in playing in the Victoria Minor Lacrosse League are asked to report to Stevenson Park Saturday morning at 9:30 for registration.

Practices for all teams will be held next week and it is important that players register Saturday.

LOCAL HOPES

From Victoria is a strong entry of Val Druce and May Wong while from Vancouver comes the favored Carol Dale, who moved up from junior ranks last season.

The question mark in the class comes from Vernon where two sisters, Pat and Kay Mendenhall, have been cleaning up on all competition in their area.

Little is known of their tournament strength and it could be that they will upset all the tipsters and take the title back to the interior town.

Play starts at 7 tonight with more than 70 paddle artists competing for prizes.

Eleven events are scheduled tonight.

ADAMS AGREES

Bruins Will Take It All Claims Phil

(From AP and BUP Reports)

Even Phil Watson, who seldom has words of praise for his Rangers, admits the New Yorkers went down fighting in their semifinal Stanley Cup hockey playoff with Montreal Canadiens.

And in almost the same breath, the usually fiery Ranger coach picked Boston Bruins to defeat the Canadiens in the final series for the historic hunk of silverware.

After watching Rocket Richard fire his 66th playoff goal in the third minute of overtime at Montreal Thursday night to give Montreal a 4-3 win and a 4-1 triumph in the best-of-seven series, Watson remarked, "Hell, we tried. It's better than losing 7-0."

"I really thought we were going to pull this game out," he said later. "The boys gave their best in the series and I don't think we had one good break."

"I have a funny feeling that the Canadiens have shot their bolt now and I doubt if they will have the same luck they had against us."

BLAKE WORRIED

Montreal coach Toe Blake also appeared worried about the Habs' chances in the final. "If we're going to win this cup they're going to have to play better than they have in this series," he said. "They (Boston) beat our brains out this season and our guys are going to have to play 60 minutes of hockey in every game if we want to win."

Meanwhile in Detroit, booming Milt Schmidt said, "Montreal will know they're in a world series, that's all I can say," after seeing his Boston Bruins sweep by the National Hockey League champion Red Wings to wind up their best-of-seven semifinal in five games.

Schmidt feels his chances of upsetting the Canadiens in the final are "real good." Boston hasn't won the cup since 1941, when Schmidt was a young member of the team.

"We were the underdogs when we started this series, too," he remarked.

"They'll give Montreal a hell of a battle," said Jack Adams, manager of the defeated Red Wings. "This is Boston's year."

Polyettes were last year's Vancouver Island champions and defeated finalists in the B.C. playoff, and will be building their team around a solid nucleus of last year's players led by Jocelyn Richmond, Larra Pollock, Babe Mosely, Ruth Erikson, Monica McKenzie, May 12 when Polyettes will take on Helen Young, Skip Seely and Ruth Individuals.

Oster. Adding their power to the lineup will be Lorraine Cody of Saskatoon and Sharon Polson. Coach for the team will be Andy George while John Oster remains as manager.

There will be 14 home games with the members of the Northwestern League starting May 25 and 26 when Hollywood Boats will be playing here.

Also included in the star-studded league are Portland Whirlwinds, Bremerton Green Jackets, Hollywood Queens and Portland Pen-nant Shop.

Local league will get under way May 12 when Polyettes will take on Individuals.

Richard Hero Over Rangers

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice Rocket Richard, the man who has scored more goals than anybody in hockey, catapulted Montreal Canadiens into the Stanley Cup final Thursday night with a typical Richard piece of artistry.

The Rocket electrified a wild, screaming crowd of 14,201 with a goal after two minutes and 11 seconds of sudden-death overtime to give Canadiens a 4-3 win over New York Rangers and end the semifinal series with dramatic suddenness.

Canadiens took the best-of-seven series 4-1 and will open the final here Saturday against Boston Bruins, conquerors of Detroit Red Wings.

ALL OR NOTHING

Richard's goal climaxed more than 60 minutes of sensational play. The underdog Rangers, all but overwhelmed by three quick Montreal goals in the second period, struck back with startling viciousness in the third.

Two Montreal goals by Jean Beliveau and one by Floyd Curry were wiped out by Parker MacDonald, Red Sullivan and Harry Howell.

The teams tore into each other at the start of the overtime, gambling on all or nothing, the Rangers lifted to renewed fury and Canadiens again poised and striking with everything.

Play swirled into the New York end. Henri Pocket Rocket Richard whipped a shot from a sharp angle. The puck struck big brother Maurice in the stomach and dropped less than 10 feet from the Ranger goal crease.

With the flair and flourish all his own, the 35-year-old veteran in a split second let fly with a backhand shot. The puck streaked past Gump Worsley, the game little New York goalie, who time and again had come to the rescue of his mates.

SEVENTH STRAIGHT FINAL

The crowd broke loose into a roar of frenzied acclaim for their hockey idol. Richard's mates swarmed about him, pounding his back and shaking his hands.

The goal meant Canadiens are in the cup final for the seventh straight season. They won last year against Detroit and in 1953 against Boston.

The goal was also Richard's 66th in 106 games of Stanley Cup competition, a series record he better every time he scores.

The windup of the series was by far the best of the three games played in Montreal. The teams battled through the first period without a score and remained deadlocked for nearly 17 minutes of the second.

After the Rocket had broken up the game, coach Toe Blake told his players they can get ready "for the next one" against Boston.

Blake said he expects a tough series against the Bruins.

BEV CHILLS CHAMP

Inspired by great goaltending of Bev Bentley, New Westminster Royals have grabbed a 2-0 lead in coast division final of Western Hockey League playoffs. Seattle's Guyle Fielder, league scoring champion, is outgunned by Bentley on this try as Tom Steeyk moves in to help his goalie. Although Fielder finally broke through for his first goal of best-of-seven series in third period at New Westminster Thursday night, Royals took 4-2 decision. (AP Wirephoto.)

ROYALS, REGALS WIN

Goal Problems Beset Amerks

If the goalie is the backbone of a hockey team, the Brandon Regals are standing stiffly upright while the once-proud Seattle Americans are slouching unbecomingly.

The Amerks, who discarded substitute goalie Marcel Pelletier of Victoria after losing the first game of the Coast Division final, went back to regular goalie Emile Francis Thursday night.

But Francis, back in harness after a two-week layoff, could not find

Doug Peden OUTDOOR REPORT

Anglers at Sandspit, on the northeast corner of Moresby Island in the Queen Charlotte's, have long been proclaiming that they have the greatest coho salmon fishing in the world. Although few of us needed any convincing as regard to quantity, the Sandspit clan has added the clinching argument about quality by running away with the top awards in the silver (coho) salmon division of the annual Field and Stream competition for big fish.

Results of the 1956 tackle races, announced by the outdoor magazine, show that Sandspit anglers collected the first five coho awards and yielded only two—to Campbell River—of the top 10 places.

Copper Bay was the happy fishing ground and Halsey Dadds was the high man on the Totem pole with a coho hitting the scales at a half-ounce over 24 pounds. A. S. Annette was the next in line with a 22-pound five-ounce silver, followed by Jack Fraser, A. D. Porter and Anthony Toth, who was fifth with a 19 1/2-pounder.

Dadds' winning coho, incidentally, was well below the acknowledged world record set by Mrs. Lee Hallberg in 1947, when she took a 31-pounder at Cowichan Bay. British Columbia also grabbed the biggest share of awards in the fly-casting division of the western rainbow trout contest, although American anglers did the catching of the big steelhead in the Kispiox River.

The Kispiox, which joins the Skeena River at Hazelton, yielded three of the top five fish in the fly-casting category. A husky scrapper—just one ounce short of 24 pounds—gave first place to Henry Perrott of Lofa, Calif., and a 21 1/2-pounder was big enough to win second place for Donald Redfern of Seattle.

California's Eel and Russian Rivers produced the next two prize winners and Dr. Charles Mincks of Seattle wound up the top five with a 16 1/2-pounder from the Kispiox.

In the open division for western rainbows, the Kispiox produced a 32-pounder for Mrs. Theodora Woodruff, but the Elizabeth, N.J., resident had to be satisfied with second place. Idaho's famous Lake Pend Oreille again gave up the biggest rainbow and most of the prize winners. Edward Vallette was out in front with a lunker weighing 32 pounds 12 ounces.

Winning fish in the category for Atlantic salmon—eastern Canada's counterpart of the steelhead—came from Quebec's Cascapedia River—in the Gaspé Peninsula. It was a 44 1/2-pound whopper taken by F. M. Brook of Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Many articles on fishing published in outdoor magazines are a bit too flowery for our taste, but the piece on steelhead in the March 11 edition of Sports Illustrated is recommended reading.

Despite tremendous fishing pressure, Washington rivers have more steelhead than ever before, thanks to the program worked out by former football star Clarence Paultke, the state's chief fisheries biologist.

Paultke's system, which may eventually be adopted in this province, takes advantage of the facts that a steelhead will automatically head for the sea when he reaches a certain size and when he returns to a river as a mature fish, he needs little or no food.

Heavy feeding brings young steelhead at state hatcheries to the sea-going stage in one year instead of two, and Paultke merely uses the streams as effluents to send the small fish out to the ocean's rich feeding grounds.

When the young steelhead are released, fishing is banned on the streams and the tons of eight-inchers poured into Washington's streams each spring head immediately for the sea, without having to run a gauntlet of fishing rods. Two years later Washington's anglers get back thousands of husky, healthy trout.

THUMBNAILED REPORT—Trout are starting to rise to dry flies at headwaters of Cowichan River and in Shawnigan and Dougan's Lakes. Trout are rising at several lakes, including Somenec, Shawnigan, Dougan's and Quamichan. Some steelhead still in most Vancouver Island rivers with Campbell and Cowichan Rivers worth a visit. Sea-run cutthroats hitting at the mouths of Little Quilicum, Campbell and Cowichan Rivers. Good numbers of bluebacks still around in Saanich Inlet and at Crofton, but not always easy to catch. Best spots in Inlet appear to be around White Lady, Banerbon and Mill Bay. Early-morning and evening fishermen are doing well with spring salmon averaging about seven pounds at Saanich Inlet with Goldstream Island a good bet.

Yanks Bully Bullies; Solve Phillie Magic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Yankees finally put an end to Philadelphia Phillies' bullying Thursday but even the world champs had a tough time. They got two hits off Robin Roberts and Dick Farrell while winning 1-0.

It was the second spring success for Yankees in three meetings with the Phils—and those are the only two defeats the National League's fifth-place club in 1956 have suffered in 13 games with A.L. teams.

Gil McDougall was handyman for Yankees, making a lunging stab on a ninth-inning liner at short to retain the sixth spot out of the exhibition grind by the New York staff, and then lofting a sacrifice fly that brought home rookie Woody Field with the lone run in the bottom half of the frame.

In other games, Brooklyn Dodgers battered Milwaukee Braves 14-8 with four home runs, two by Duke Snider; and St. Louis Cardinals made the most of Pete Vojtey's wildness to beat Detroit Tigers 5-4.

CHISOX WIN—Bubba Phillips tripled and rookie Earl Battey brought him home with a sacrifice fly as Chicago White Sox nudged Boston Red Sox 6-5 in 11 innings. Cincinnati defeated Washington 5-4 in 10 innings. Pittsburgh bunched singles to slip Kansas City 4-3. New York Giants ended Cleveland's winning streak at six by a 9-6 count, and Baltimore mauled Chicago Cubs 18-5.

The Braves worked over Johnny Podres and rookie Rene Valdes for 16 hits, including home runs by Danny O'Connell and Hank Aaron, but the Brooks blasted 17 hits off Gene Conley, Joie Jay and Dave Jolly.

Seven errors marked the White Sox-Red Sox game, with the first five runs unearned. Reliever Ellis Kinder, the old guy who used to toil for Boston, shut off his ex-mates without a run in the ninth after they loaded the bases with none out.

Second half of the 36-hole tournament will be played at a later date.

3.55 MILE PREDICTED FOR NEW 'DREAM' TRACK

LONDON (AP)—Two British Olympic runners agreed Thursday to run a mile race that many experts predict will bring the dream clocking of 3.55. Ken Wood and Derek Ibbotson are the runners poised for that amazing time—three seconds faster than the best time indoors by Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen, made in the United States.

The race will be run at Manchester's indoor stadium April 17. That's the reason for the 3.55 hopes. It's the sort of track that all runners dream about.

The track is set in a natural bowl, heavily banked and runners say it is like running downhill all the way.

A month ago Wood clocked 3.37.4 in a "blunder" mile. An after-the-race check showed that the distance was 112 yards short of the required 1,760 yards.

Eilers Do It—But Definitely

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Eilers were rated favorites to win their eighth straight title before the 1957 Canadian senior A women's basketball final started.

The opposition, Kitchener-Waterloo Eilers, was hardly expected.

Thursday night Eilers ended the best-of-seven series in straight games with a 61-21 victory. Scores of earlier games were 57-30, 46-39 and 55-16.

There have been few comparable lacings in Canadian play-off basketball since Edmonton Grads breezed to 64-6 and 86-12 wins over a Halifax team in 1928.

Grads also won the title nine years in a row—from 1925 to 1934—and this is a record Eilers may equal next year.

Alex Kvasnak, the Kitchener-Waterloo coach, said he doubts any worthwhile competition will come out of Ontario unless "we change our antiquated rules for girls' basketball in Ontario schools."

Guards could not pass the centre line and could not score. Interference with the shooter was not permitted.

Consequently Ontario girls never learned the style of play used in championship competition until they left high school.

He watched two Vancouver high school teams play in a curtain-raiser before the championship game Thursday night.

"Most of those girls were better than many of the players I have on my team," said Kvasnak.

Elliott's lack of polish was evident in their weak dribbling, lack of pattern in passing and inaccuracy on penalty shots. Of 16 foul shots only three were good, all by Mary Gay, the former Ontario women's golf champion.

Miss Gay also clicked for three field goals to lead Elliotts with nine points.

Bears Trail Barons in Semifinal

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Barons edged Hershey Bears, 2-1, Thursday night to take a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven semifinal series for the American Hockey League's Calder Cup. A crowd of 6,133 saw the game.

Hershey scored first, when Dunc Fisher hit a 20-footer on a pass from Frank Mathers, playing coach, at 9:59 of the second period.

Cleveland tied the score when it had a one-man advantage at 16:29 of the second period. Centre Jack Gordon, Barons' coach, scored from short range.

Cleveland's winning goal came at 19:13 of the second period as Glover scored after Jimmy Moore had brought the puck down and laid a long pass in the goal mouth.

ALBERTA HORSEMEN AGAIN LOSE BID
EDMONTON (CP)—Alberta horsemen's bid to obtain their own race track at Edmonton was rejected by a legislative committee today for the third time since 1948.

By a vote of 14 to 4, the private bills committee decided not to proceed with the application to incorporate the horsemen's Jockey Club which planned to build a six-turlock track here at a cost of roughly $3,000,000.

LOS ANGELES—Mickey Southworth, 105, Los Angeles, outpointed Joe Alamo, 138, Los Angeles, 20.

Jackie Only Master In Duffers' Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—Defending champion Jackie Burke Jr. carried a shaky one-stroke lead today into the second round of the highest-scoring Masters Golf Tournament in 21 years.

And that lead was in immediate danger of an assault by veteran pro Marty Furgol of Leont, Ill. Halted by darkness after shooting par golf for 17 holes yesterday, Furgol needed only a birdie on the 18th today to deadlock with curly-haired Jackie for the top spot.

But then this is a strange Masters Tournament where no player in 100 could do better than Burke's one-under-par 71 on opening day. This is the first Masters since 1936, when Lighthouse Harry Cooper led the field with 70 in the first round, that only one player was able to crack par for the first day.

HIGH WIND HURTS
A high wind, offshoot of tornado conditions in the south, was one factor in the high scoring. Another was the contouring and placing of the pines on the expansive Augusta National greens which could double for heliports in an emergency.

Burke got his lead on one spectacular hole, the 12th, with an eagle. His second landed on the brink of a creek but rolled away instead of into the water, and he dribbled a 55-footer into the cup.

Below Burke's standout 71, the Masters looked more like the interzone finals of the Davis Cup for tennis than an American golf tournament. Two Aussies—British Open champion Peter Thomson of Melbourne and Australian Open champion Bruce Crampton of Sydney—were grouped at par 72 with Doug Ford of Mahopac, N.Y., top money winner of 1956, and the two men who have won the Masters three times previously, Jimmy Demaret and Sam Snead.

BEN HOGAN HAD 76
The 73s included two other British Empire men—veteran Henry Cotton of London, and Al Balding, Canadian PGA champion from Islington, Ont.

Balding shot a three-over-par 39 on the first nine, then got hot to score a two-under-par 34 on the back half. He had an eagle on the 530-yard eighth hole, but some other front-nine holes gave him trouble.

He missed three greens and one short putt, and got into a bunker. These mishaps put him one over par for each of five holes.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, came in with a 75. He was one over par on the front nine, and the roof fell in on him on the par-three 12th hole. He said later that the wind stopped his ball, which fell in a creek in front of the green. He dropped another ball, and fired it into the creek too. He took a seven on the hole, but regained some ground with birdies on Nos. 14 and 15.

High-five man in the tourney was G. McIlmoyl with 1068, while L. Wardle took singles honors with 316. For the ladies it was E. Gerrard, high five with 808, and B. Rolph at 240 for top single.

Consolation round winners were Coyotes, who scored a total of 5,233 pins to win the Capital City Trophy over second-place Cubs.

League windup and prize presentations will take place at the Golden Slipper April 23.

BOY CONTRACTACTIVITIES

By FREEMAN KING

Sidney Group--The pack is now up to its full strength, 12 new members joining during the past month. Unless a new pack is formed it will be necessary to turn boys away. This will depend upon new leaders coming forward.

At the meeting Wednesday, "Akela" Winnie Bennett invested Sammy Moorehouse, Victor Volrath, R. Parkeson and Victor Johnston as Wolf Cubs. Harry Parkeson was invested as a leader. First and second star games were run off.

Invested as Scouts at a recent meeting were Bruce Wilson, Brian Hughes, Andrew Griffiths, Roger Perry and Leslie Litwin. D. Alexander received his second class badge.

A new patrol, the Wolves, was formed with Rodney Coward as patrol leader and Michael Adamson as second. Michael Litwin was made second of the Lion patrol. Firemen's badges were presented to M. Litwin, R. Bryant, R. McKinney, D. Mason, R. Coward, G. Miller, P. Crossley, F. Shapellier, M. Adamson, R. Chappell and R. Turley. Swimmers' badges went to G. Hughes, D. Alexander, M. Litwin, M. ## 3,000 Favor Breakwater In Oak Bay Petition for a breakwater to provide a boat basin in Oak Bay gathered momentum this week with the report that 3,000 of a desired 7,000 signatures have been obtained.

Victoria Outboard Club is seeking federal, provincial and municipal aid in financing the proposed breakwater from Oak Bay Boat House to near Jimmy Chicken Island.

When the roster of names is filled, probably by June, the petition will be presented to Oak Bay Council, Commodore H. G. Adams said.

Meanwhile, the outboard club has planned a heavy schedule of activities for every second Sunday from May 20 to mid-October, including fishing derbies, picnics and a three-day cruise with Vancouver and Seattle Outboard Clubs to Friday Harbor in August.

School Finance Parley Wednesday

A Greater Victoria Intermunicipal meeting on school financing will be held at the City Hall next Wednesday.

Expected to attend are Reeve Arthur Ash and Coun. Leslie Passmore, for Saanich; Coun. C. H. G. Mann, representing Oak Bay; Reeve A. C. Wurtele, for Esquimalt; Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, for Victoria; and Trustee Kenneth Leeming, representing Greater Victoria School Board.

City manager C. C. Wyatt and Saanich administrator John Tribe will also attend.

Who First Saw the Planet Pluto?

The planet Uranus was discovered in 1781, more or less by accident. Until then, people thought the solar system was complete with six planets. We live on one of them and a normal pair of eyes can pick out Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. But very, very sharp eyes are needed to spot Uranus and they must know just where to look in the sky.

The world was agog at the new-found planet Uranus. The experts watched and figured out its path around the sun. This path was unusual. Another planet, still farther from the sun, seemed to be pulling at Uranus. Two young men, Adams of England, and Leverrier of France, set out to figure the position of this invisible planet. In 1846, their work resulted in the discovery of Neptune.

Now Neptune was watched and figured. Experts decided that it could not be causing all the strange behavior of Uranus. So the search began for still another planet, even farther from the sun. The most valuable work was done by two Americans, William Pickering and Percival Lowell.

In 1909, William Pickering published a book about his work called "A Search for a Planet Beyond Neptune." From 1905 Percival Lowell devoted himself to searching for the distant planet. He used his money to build and endow the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona. In 1915 he published his mathematical findings about the possible position of the invisible planet.

Both men agreed as to the likely position of the distant planet. Lowell estimated it to be seven times the weight of the earth. Pickering estimated it to be twice as much. But neither of these two great men was first to spot the distant planet.

Lowell died in 1916. Pickering went on studying the countless dots on telescopic photographs, trying to pick out the planet beyond Neptune. Somehow, he overlooked it among those thousands of tiny bright dots.

From 1929 the observatory at Flagstaff was devoted to finding the distant planet. On Jan. 21, a young man named Clyde Tombaugh, was studying a host of dots on a plate taken by a 13-inch telescope. One of those dots could be it! This dot was watched for a few weeks and proved itself to be a planet. The discovery of another planet was announced to the world in March, 1930. It was soon named Pluto, and the first two letters of its name are used in its shortened form. These two letters also stand for Percival Lowell, without whose work and efforts the planet would not have been discovered at that time.

Clyde Tombaugh's discovery sent Pickering back to look at his old telescopic plates. There was the planet Pluto all the time, overlooked in the host of bright dots on the photograph. Still more old plates were examined. The little planet had been appearing in pictures for some time! But Clyde Tombaugh was the first person to pick it out from all the other tiny dots of light scattered over the sky pictures.

Andy sends a Hammond's International World Globe to Dee Burr, age nine, of Emmett, Idaho, for the question:

Why doesn't the coldest day make the most frost on the window pane?

The frost on the window pane is made by bitsy crystals of frozen vapor. This vapor is the gaseous form of water. Water turns into vapor when it boils away or evaporates. The air can hold just so much and no more of this invisible vapor. Warm air can hold more vapor than cool air. So, when warm air cools after it has a full quota of vapor, some of that vapor must be unloaded.

On a chilly day, the outside air presses against the cold window pane. This chills the air and forces it to unload its vapor. When Jack Frost is prowling around outdoors, the vapor left on the window pane chills straight into crystals of ice. This is the material Jack Frost uses to paint those delicate pictures of ferns and foliage on the window.

Suppose the day is very, very cold, the coldest day in the year. The air outdoors has already given up most of its surplus water vapor. There is very little left in the air. The colder the day, the less likely there is to be extra vapor in the air. Hence, on the coldest day of the year, Jack Frost has very little, if any, icy crystals to paint the window panes.

Need for Services By Indians 'Urgent'

There is an "urgent" need for increased health and welfare services on B.C. Indian reserves, it was revealed Thursday in the seventh annual report of the provincial advisory committee on Indian affairs.

Committee members said they were particularly concerned over the high rate of mortality among Indians in the province, especially among infants.

In 1955 the infant mortality was 90.2 per 1,000 live births in the Indian population, compared with 21.6 among non-Indians.

Committee secretary Joanna R. Wright reported that all social welfare officials she had contacted agreed on the need of more welfare work among Indians on reserves.

The report noted an increasing amount of public interest in Indian affairs.

"The attitude of the Indians themselves toward their fellow Canadians is also undergoing a change," it was stated.

"They are showing a greater confidence in themselves, and in their contacts with employers and associates off their reserves are assuming a greater degree of personal responsibility."

German Commands U.S. Regiment

VAHINGEN, Germany (AP) -- For the first time, a U.S. army armored regiment last week served under German command in NATO exercises. U.S. and German army officials said teamwork was excellent and there were no difficulties in co-ordination or communication. The Americans were assigned to a German corps headed by Maj. Gen. Friedrich Fortsch.

Photo Record of All Taxable Land Will Aid City in Appeal Courts

Victoria is compiling a photo record of every taxable piece of property in the city, council finance committee was told

Thursday by comptroller Dennis A. Young. Assessors carry a 16 mm. camera, he said. Pictures are required to back arguments in courts of appeal.

The committee was informed also that estimates for the assessor's department will be increased due to the need to employ an additional clerk for the handling of the $28 tax rebate approved by the provincial government for all homeowners.

SASQUATCH 'CAPTURED'

AGASSIZ, B.C. (CP)—They caught their first Sasquatch here Thursday. Unfortunately it was of the type known as a "symbolic Sasquatch," even though it was carefully locked in a log cage.

The mock Sasquatch was brought into a meeting of Agassiz branch of the Canadian Legion to publicize this community's centennial project—capture of one of the legendary giants.

CHOIR TO JOIN SYMPHONY

Beethoven's 'Ninth' Week-End Feature

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON

To the several choirs of instruments that make up a symphony orchestra, has been added for the occasion of the forthcoming week-end's pair of Victoria Symphony Orchestra concerts, a large mixed-voice choir.

This richest of all experiences in sound is necessary for the performance of one of the world's great masterpieces of music—Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, the "Choral." In addition four soloists are required.

Tenor Edward P. Palmason, a physician and surgeon, leads a busy life in Seattle as both doctor and singer. He has appeared there as leading tenor with the University of Washington Glee Club, Seattle Summer Opera, Seattle Civic Opera, Northwest Grand Opera Company, Spokane Symphony and Seattle Symphony.

completing a busy season of engagements across Canada. Margaret Abbott, who was soprano soloist in the Messiah in December, and Stanley Martin, Victoria basso, at present studying in Vancouver, complete the quartet of soloists.

Victoria Choral Society has been prepared by Graham Steed for its participation. The ensemble has been amplified by some members from the German-Canadian Choir.

Hans Gruber will conduct the all-Beethoven program, which will include two sets of dances. Concerts will take place Sunday afternoon at 3 and Monday evening at 8.30 at the Royal Theatre.

COMPENSATION TOO HIGH?

CCF Challenged In Sheep Squabble

OTTAWA (CP).—The CCF has been challenged to produce its own value estimate for a diseased pedigree Alberta flock of sheep for which $100,000 federal compensation was paid on the flock's destruction. E. G. McCullough (CCF, Moose Mountain) believes it was too high.

The challenge was made Thursday by both Colin E. Bennett, parliamentary assistant to Veterans Affairs Minister Lapointe, and Tom Goode (L-Burnaby-Richmond). There was no immediate CCF move to accept.

The Liberal members issued the challenge as the Commons agriculture committee continued its investigation of rumors repeated in the Commons by Mr. McCullough. These were that common sheep were substituted for some of the pedigree sheep and that some pedigree sheep were moved to Manitoba before destruction of the 654-head flock of Drumheller breeder P. J. Rock. The sheep were hit by scrapie.

PROOF OF SLAUGHTER

Philip Rock, the breeder's partner-son, has denied both charges and Thursday night Mr. McCullough said he is prepared to accept the 654 registration certificates and approved applications for registration certificates as evidence of the animals' slaughter.

Mr. McCullough said the "most important thing" is that the rumors he referred to be dispelled and the committee find Mr. Rock fairly compensated with no loss to the taxpayers.

But when Mr. Rock later said

Fire Kills Horses

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Twenty-seven race horses died early Wednesday when a barn went up in flames at Fort Miami Raceway. Every horse in the barn died in the fire or had to be destroyed. The fire's cause has not been determined.

he figured that they got a fair compensation for his flock, Mr. McCullough said.

"You see the figure was chiseled down to a fair figure—I think it is a hell of a high figure for the compensation."

He and other CCF members continued to hammer at Agriculture Minister Gardiner, accusing him of "misstatements" to the Commons on the affair.

Earlier, Colin Cameron (CCF, Nanaimo) suggested Mr. Gardiner should resign for telling the Commons last July that independent United States appraisers were brought in to set a value on the flock.

Evidence presented to the committee showed that an official of the agriculture department set the valuation accepted by Mr. Gardiner. The U.S. evaluations were by two American sheep experts retained by Mr. Rock.

WANTS TO GET FIRED

Sit-Down Detective Still Waits Pension

VANCOUVER (CP)—A detective with 28 years service in Vancouver's 800-man police force said today his "sit-down strike" for a pension so far has been without success.

Det. Ernest R. Deacon hasn't reported for work since the last week of November, 1956. He has been officially suspended since last Feb. 14.

He walked off his job to get fired so he can collect a pension, but Deacon says he has received no clarification on his status from Police Chief George Archer or other senior police officers.

"I don't know what they intend to do with me. I don't care how long I stay suspended," said the 46-year-old detective in an interview.

"If I stay on the suspended list until I'm 55, they'll have to pension me anyway."

The detective called his walkout a "test case." He said a precedent was set when former police chief Walter Mulligan asked the board of police commissioners to fire him (Mulligan) so he would qualify for a pension. He was fired and became eligible for $90 a month for life.

Regulations state that if an officer with 20 years' service is fired with cause he qualifies for a pension based on his years of service. Detective Deacon said he would be eligible for $70 a month.

Several long-service officers said the Canadian Cancer Society will spend $720,867 on research and related projects during 1957.

MONTE ROBERTS

Yesterday Judy Boots Streak, the female-type doggie who lives at our house, announced she is a candidate in the 1957 Miss Victoria Contest.

Since then, many people have asked me how a female-type doggie can enter such a contest.

As a matter of fact, I asked Judy Boots Streak the same question.

"Don't you realize there are rules to this contest?" I asked her.

"I have studied them carefully and I can meet every qualification," JB replied.

"Here's a copy of the rules," I said. "Rule 1, contestant must be a Canadian citizen, a resident of the South Vancouver Island District for at least six months."

"I was born right here as you know very well," JB replied. "In fact, I was born in Oak Bay, but I don't put on airs about it."

"Rule 2," I said. "Contestant must be single and never have been married, divorced, or had marriage annulled."

"I've never been married or ANYTHING," said JB.

"Rule 3," I hurried on. "Contestant must be not less than 18, not more than 22 years old."

"As of January 15, 1957," said JB. "I was three years old, dog-type age, which is multiplied by seven to make me 21, people-type age."

"Rule 4," I continued. "Contestant must be of good character and possess poise, personality, charm, beauty of face and figure. Contestant will be judged in bathing suit and sun dress." JB started to answer, but I interrupted.

"Don't bother telling me about the poise, etc., which you possess. But how about a bathing suit and sun dress?"

"I was born with both on," said JB, "and have never removed them."

"Rules 5 and 6," I went on, although I knew it was a losing battle. "Contestant must be in good health, have education equivalent to one year in high school, and no former contestant is eligible to enter."

Said JB: "I am so healthy it is disgusting; I have had education equivalent to 99 years on the chain gang, and I am not a former contestant and to get back to that bit about education the first word you taught me was 'no' and what better education could a prospective Miss Victoria have?"

"So all right," I agreed. "So how about Rule 7? Contestants may only enter under the sponsorship of an organization or club?"

"I am working on that," said JB, "and I expect to have an important announcement to make in the very near future."

Well, I tried. But it appears JB is, indeed, going to enter the Miss Victoria Contest.

Will Gordon Carter of the Junior Chamber of Commerce please see that Judy Boots Streak is supplied with the required entry form?

He had been district passenger agent, Saskatoon, since 1951.

Juvenile Court Language Will 'Curl Your Hair'

Victoria may soon be faced with need for a new Juvenile Court to replace present premises at city Health and Welfare Building, comptroller Dennis A. Young told council finance committee Thursday.

Mr. Young said juvenile offences are becoming more numerous and the young charges difficult to control in the welfare centre.

"The language that comes out of them sometimes is enough to curl your hair."

The committee will tour the welfare centre and the city hall before approving estimates for maintenance and repair. Only $880 was cut from estimates for general administration Thursday despite the fact they total $10,000 more than last year's expenditures.

Government House Guest Brother Of Queen Mother

SUN DAZZLES WEATHER BOSS

Approval of sunny skies produced by Victoria weatherman Bill Mackie, left, was given today by Patrick McTaggart-Cowan, deputy director of federal weather service, who forgot to bring dark glasses from Toronto where sun is rarity at this season. Mr. Mackie promises more sun with a little cloud for weekend, high of 55 Saturday. (Times Photo.)

Shortage of Personnel Hampers Long Range Weather Forecasts

Canada's weather service can provide long-range forecasts when sufficient trained personnel is obtained, Patrick McTaggart-Cowan, deputy director, said here today.

"We know how to produce accurate five-day forecasts," he said, "but we haven't sufficient manpower to follow through."

Mr. McTaggart-Cowan is here from his Toronto headquarters on a brief tour of western Canada's weather stations.

He said funds are available to add needed staff, but men with proper qualifications are hard to find.

"There is a good career waiting for any university graduate with a sound knowledge of mathematics and physics," he said.

"We are aiming toward forecasts of up to 30 days, and we can achieve this if we can secure the staff."

Requests for longer weather forecasts are increasing daily, he said, and the weather service is anxious to meet the demands.

"We have a pilot team of two men and one woman, working along lines explored by the U.S. Weather Bureau," he said.

"We know it can be done. To encourage recruits for our weather service, we are offering a 'pay while learning deal.' A person graduating from university with suitable credits will be taken on staff, and given a summer course at Carleton College, Ottawa, for added instruction in mathematics and physics.

"He will draw full pay during this period. If, at a later time, he wishes to earn an MA, he will be given a year's leave of absence, with pay. And, after that, if he wishes a PhD, a second leave of absence with pay will be granted."

Arrangements have also been made with the RCN and RCAF to grant temporary commissions to meteorologists, to give them experience in the military field.

Mr. McTaggart-Cowan left today to return to eastern Canada.

'TRADE WINDS' WILL SAIL TO VICTORIA

Newest addition to the Royal Victoria Yacht Club fleet will be sailed here from Santa Barbara late this month.

The German-built ketch Passet (meaning Trade Winds) has been purchased by Jim Genge, who left this morning by car for California.

Crewing for him on the trip up-coast will be Tom and Roy Denny, Tom's son, Robert, and Mrs. Genge.

Passet is a 45-footer with auxiliary power.

Plan is to call at San Francisco northbound, then head out into the Pacific for 500 miles to take advantage of prevailing winds.

Tentative departure date from Santa Barbara is April 20, and the cruise will take from three to four weeks.

Services to the end that further thought may be given to a joint project and delighted to help in any way I can."

Oak Bay Liberal MLA P. A. Gibbs said he also would be pleased to sit in on the talks.

Victoria Social Credit MLA W. N. Chant, minister of public works, also was agreeable.

"The only thing is to bring in a new project they might all agree upon," he said.

J. Donald Smith, the fourth Victoria district MLA, said he would be "very happy" to sit in and see the matter settled on a mutual basis.

SET PACE FOR B.C.

Chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, L. J. Wallace, intimated this committee looked to Victoria district to "set the pace" as the capital city.

"We hope the mayor and Reeves will get together in an emergency meeting and decide whether a joint project can still be carried out. There should be no separate projects unless as a last resort."

The local centennial planners who washed their hands of further 60-cent project talks made their decision without any display of anger Thursday night.

"It is not us—it's the divergency in views of our various councils," said Esquimalt delegate G. K. Sammon.

HOSPITAL FAVORED

As the matter stands, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt councils support the proposed new wing for Royal Jubilee Hospital as a Centennial project.

Esquimalt also supports development of Gorge Park as an alternative. Most city aldermen favour a youth centre with an ice surface near Memorial Arena.

The committee called a mass meeting April 25, of delegates from Greater Victoria clubs, church groups, civic and service organizations to outline their individual Centennial plans in order to co-ordinate activities. They will be asked to submit their programs in writing.

MLAs WILL HELP

"I sure do. I was disappointed to hear Greater Victoria Centennial Committee has been unable to recommend a joint project."

"I am delighted to hear it's been suggested the members (of the legislature) offer their

Gaming House Keeper Given Week Remand

Audrey Jorgenson, 5151 Cordova Bay, was charged in city police court today with keeping a common gaming house at 1417 Government, and was remanded without plea to next Thursday.

Police named her as operator of a bingo game at Victoria Whist and Bridge Club, in the basement of Westholme Hotel, which was raided by police March 28 at 10 p.m.

Players were mostly elderly persons and pensioners, police said, some of whom complained of losing large sums of money in games.

Lawyer Jack Gatehouse appeared for Mrs. Jorgenson.

City Nurses Will Attend Rome Parley

Eight Victoria nurses will attend the 11th International Council of Nurses congress in Rome, May 27 to June 1, it was announced today.

There will be nearly 250 Canadian nurses present, and the Canadian delegation will be fourth largest of the 60 nations to be represented. Some 3,000 nurses are expected to attend.

From Victoria will go Miss Elizabeth Riddell, superintendent of nurses for the Victoria Order of Nurses; Miss Monica Frich, director of public health nurses for the government; Miss Jean Harris, an industrial nurse with the RCN; Mrs. E. I. Stibbard, supervisor of the Gorge Chronic Hospital; Miss Elvira Nordland, hospital inspector and consultant, BCHHS; Mrs. J. Contini, formerly with the Victoria health department; Miss Lilla Wright, formerly with the RCN, and Miss Elizabeth Layton, of the Saanich and southern Vancouver Island health unit.

Rites Planned Here For Murder Victim

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Dorothy Duyvejonck, 30, Courtenay murder victim, will be made following the arrival from Quebec of her RCAF corporal husband, Arthur, expected here today.

The body of the Victoria-born woman arrived here Thursday. Haymard's Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Accused of the knife-slaying is Leland Miller, a former Victoria milkman. He is in Oakalla prison after an eight-day remand Wednesday without plea.

The dead woman and Miller were living together in a farmhouse three miles north of Courtenay. The slaying took place about 10 p.m. Tuesday.

Hostile Unions Held CD Danger

Buck Volunteer Forces, View Royal Man Claims

Victoria police and fire unions are hindering expansion of civil defence services, it was charged today.

W. B. Cole of View Royal told a Civil Defence Control Board meeting here this morning it is impossible to train volunteer auxiliaries for disaster service due to union antagonism.

"They are afraid if we have a volunteer force it would weaken their position when it comes to bargaining for wage increases... if they go out on strike the volunteer force would take their place," he stated.

A city official pointed out after the meeting, by provincial statute it is illegal for either police or firemen to strike. Similarly, a municipal strike may not lock out members of police or fire departments.

Alderman Demands Apology

Alderman J. Donald Smith demanded the remarks be withdrawn.

He suggested the board apologise to city police and firemen. "Pure supposition," he said.

He said Mr. Cole "had no facts on which to base his charges."

They were "unfounded" and showed "a bad reflection on our two services."

Ald. Smith asked Civil Defence co-ordinator Roger Peachey

when he had last approached local fire and police chiefs to ask assistance in training the force.

"About a year ago," Mr. Peachey said.

He added that the talks fell through because the chiefs' "hands were tied."

"Who tied them?" the alderman asked.

"The unions," said Mr. Peachey.

Discriminatory Treatment Claimed

"It is strange that firemen and policemen are singled out for discriminatory treatment," said R. B. H. Sewell of Langford.

"We can't say that they are holding up civil defence efforts because civil defence has no police."

"Why should fire and police forces queue up for additional duties when even civil defence isn't sure what they should do?"

The control board authorized co-ordinator Peachey to approach fire and police chiefs in all municipalities for preliminary talks on the organization of a volunteer force.

He was told to report back to the board before taking the matter to the unions.

A small test evacuation in Greater Victoria was proposed and will be placed on the agenda of the next meeting.

Malahat to Stay Bumpy for Summer

Reconstruction of the Malahat Highway will not be completed this year, a department of highways official said today.

Work will continue this summer on the Mill Bay section and motorists will "just have to suffer a little more pain," the spokesman said.

The highways department is considering improving the Mill Bay cutoff road, which will be used as a detour.

"We will have the Malahat in as good shape as it was last summer," it was stated.

All sections of the new highway will be surfaced this year except the Mill Bay portion. There is an outside possibility it may be paved in the fall.

Herbert Bruch, Social Credit MLA for Esquimalt, charged at the recent legislature session that contractors on the Malahat were "dragging their feet."

He urged Highway Minister Gagliardi to "smarten them up."

Dr. Boak was a fellow of the International College of Surgeons, and member of the American College of Surgeons and the Pacific Northwest Surgical Society, member of the board of governors for the University School and trustee and former manager of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Born in Halifax, N.S., he received his education at McGill and Queens Universities and interned at Vancouver General Hospital.

Dr. Boak is survived by his wife, Dorothy, at home; two sons, Cmdr. Eric E. G. Boak, Victoria, and John E. Boak, Vancouver; one brother, Arthur Edward, professor of Egyptology at the University of Michigan, and three grandchildren.

Wednesday Talk

Prof. John L. Climenhaga of Victoria College will speak at a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, Victoria centre, in the college auditorium Wednesday at 8 p.m. His subject will be "The Red Giant Stars."

Sooke Trustees To Discuss By-Law Tonight

A public meeting will be held at Melmont Junior-Senior High School tonight at 8 when trustees of Sooke School District 62 will discuss the forthcoming $533,000 building by-law referendum.

A similar meeting on the by-law, to be voted on April 13, will be held at Milnes Landing Junior-Senior High School Monday at 8 p.m.

Archivist Tells Olympic Loggers Of History Plan

Delegates here for the 12th annual Olympic Logging Conference played golf at Victoria Golf Club this morning; and this afternoon heard talks from leaders in the forestry field of the Pacific Northwest.

Provincial archivist Willard Ireland also spoke on "The Forest History Foundation," a plan gaining prominence in Canada and the United States for preservation of historical data concerning forestry.

Installation of officers for 1957-58 was scheduled for the end of the session.

Annual banquet will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Empress, and presentation of perpetual golf trophies will be made by hotel manager Cyril Chapman.

A dance follows.

NEW ORGAN at St. Matthias' Church will be used for first time Palm Sunday. Built in England by the organ-making firm of Norman and Beard and William Hall & Sons, the 13-stop instrument has just been assembled. It is made of oak, to fit in with decor of church pews. The rector, Canon Francis Tomalin, is shown here with company representative John Norman, a "voicer"—that is, he tests tone.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Food Prices Are Dropping Now That Spring Has Come

By PENNY SAVER

In just 15 days, Easter will be here. Orders for decorated chocolate eggs and bunnies are being taken in town, and to avoid last-minute rushing about and possible disappointment, why not put in your order to your favorite candy store now? Other things to be bought right now, today, are vegetables for the weekend meals. While gathering up dinner-time foods on this shopping trip, you can peek into the candy store windows and decide which types of Easter egg decorations you prefer. During the next two weeks, I'll tell you of other Easter trimmings I've seen, but right now, on to the vegetables...

Prices on our favorite foods are starting to slide downwards. In many cases with the change of seasons. I saw radishes selling at 10 cents a bunch, and green onions at two bunches for 19 cents. These are getting to be more like summertime prices. Mexican tomatoes are priced at 25 cents a tube, and extra large stalks of celery are a quarter. Young tender asparagus is dropping in price, to 23 cents a pound, and—clean, scrubbed Jerusalem artichokes are two pounds for a quarter. While turnips are two bunches for 39 cents, and carrots, by the bunch on package, are two for 25 cents. Broccoli is a popular vegetable right now, and costs 19 cents a pound.

An amazing color is hothouse rhubarb, tangy and tasty, that's just right for pies and puddings. It's yours for 25 cents a bunch.

More color... this time NOT in edible form. Deep golden daffodils, outdoor varieties, are selling at 18 cents a dozen, or two dozen for 35 cents. Large King Alfred daffs are 29 cents a dozen. The almost-orange bugle centres, contrasting with the bright leaves and foliage will look lovely on your dining

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

A thank you note from a book borrower:

I have borrowed a school book from a neighbor. He is 18 years old. I will have to return it, and would like to know if I should give him a gift. If so, what is the appropriate gift for him, or should I give something to his parents instead?

Louise Davis Answers:
The nicest and most appropriate gift and one that the young man would appreciate most would be to just write him a note of thanks. Here is an example: "Dear George, Many thanks for the loan of this book, which I am sure has helped me grade. I tried to take good care of it and hope that I didn't keep it too long. Sincerely, Patty." You have no other obligation to him or his parents, so do nothing more. It would not be proper for you to give a present, for it would be embarrassing to the boy and his parents. You would embarrass yourself too.

JAM INCREASES MP'S SALARY

LONDON (CP)—Jane Chichester-Clark, wife of the Conservative member of Parliament for Londonderry, brews her own marmalade, bottles it and sells it to a well-known bakery shop in the Chelsea district.

Says Mrs. Chichester-Clark, who studied English at Cambridge and singing in Vienna: "It's expensive living in London and what I make helps with the problem of existing on an MP's salary."

A British member of Parliament earns about £1,500 ($4,200).

Mrs. Chichester-Clark has made up to 96 pounds of marmalade in one week. Her recipe is 10 oranges, four grapefruits, three lemons to 10 pounds of sugar, which produces 19 pounds of marmalade.

WEDDING THIS MONTH

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Hill, 1120 Hillside Avenue, have announced the engagement of their only daughter, Margaret June, to Mr. Marcel Victor Louis Mollin, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Mollin, San Jose Avenue. The wedding will take place quietly in the vestry of Centennial United Church, April 20, at 8 p.m. Miss Diane Murrell will be bridesmaid, and Mr. Albert Hill, best man.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Fuzz on 3-Year-Old's Face Not Inherited

(The Friday Question Box)

Q.—After this summer was over I noticed a large amount of white fuzzy hair on my three-year-old child's face and arms. What caused this? My mother-in-law has a lot of fuzz on her face. She is 64 years old. Could my child inherit this characteristic from her grandmother?

A.—Your mother-in-law has hair on her face because her glandular system has changed at her age. Your child did not inherit this. The sun may have stimulated the growth. I imagine this will disappear, given time.

Q.—Please tell me if I think I should lose some weight. I am 26 years old and have two children. I am large boned and weigh 155 pounds. I am 5 feet, 8½ inches tall. My measurements are bust 38, waist 27 and hips 40 inches. I think I should lose about five pounds.

A.—Considering your large frame I imagine that a five pound loss is about right. You should take hip-slimming exercises.

Q.—I am 15 years old, 5 feet, 2 inches tall, and weigh 100 pounds. I have a small frame. I want to know if I should gain some weight.

A.—According to charts you are about 13 pounds underweight. However, since you have a small build a 5 to 10 pound gain probably would be right for you. You should gain for health's sake.

Q.—I wonder if you can help me find a new hairstyle that will be becoming to me. I have a long forehead and a long face. I can wear certain styles except for my chin which looks so long it is awful. I have been wearing bangs but am tired of them.

A.—Wear your hair flat on top with a centre part. It should be fluffed out at the sides to add width to your face. To compensate for the long chin wear your hair long enough. It should come an inch or so below the tip of the ears.

Q.—I am 13 years old, 5 feet,

one inch tall, and weigh 94 pounds. My bust measures 30 inches, waist 25 and hips 32 inches. Are my measurements and weight okay? I have very thin legs from the thigh to the ankle. Could I take some exercise for them?

A.—You should gain 5 to 8 pounds. Do the following exercise. Stand with your left side toward the wall. Place your left hand on the wall. Rise high on your left toe as you swing the right leg forward with a stiff knee. Lower left heel to floor and return right leg to place. Continue. Later, turn your right side toward the wall and do the same exercise rising high on the right toe, etc.

LENTEN RECIPE

FISH FILLETS WITH CLAM STUFFING

Two (1-pound) packages fish fillets (cod, haddock, ocean perch, flounder or sole), 2 (5-ounce) cans minced clams, ½ cup butter or margarine, ¼ cup chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped celery, 4 cups bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, salt and pepper.

Let fish fillets thaw on refrigerator shelf or at room temperature. Arrange half of fillets close together in buttered baking dish. Drain minced clams, reserving liquid. Melt butter or margarine in skillet. Pour off about half of butter and save. To butter in skillet add onion and celery; cook until tender. Stir in bread crumbs until butter is soaked up. Continue tossing crumbs until they brown slightly.

Stir in clams, lemon juice, and enough clam liquid to moisten. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Spoon stuffing over fillets. Cover with remaining butter. Bake at 375 degrees F. (moderate oven) 20 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork. Serve in baking dish. Makes 6-8 servings.

With fried fillets, use lemon tartar sauce for extra enjoyment.

LEMON TARTAR SAUCE

One cup mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon onion juice or 1 tablespoon chopped chives, 2 tablespoons chopped green relish or green pepper, fresh lemon juice. Combine other ingredients, then thin to the desired consistency with lemon juice. For variation add chopped celery, chili sauce or Worcestershire sauce.

McCann's CBC Role Challenged By CCF Whip

OTTAWA (CP)—CCF whip Stanley Knowles accused Revenue Minister McCann Thursday of usurping the rights of parliament and its members by making representations to the publicly-owned CBC in connection with programing and budgeting matters.

Dr. McCann, who reports to parliament for the CBC, said his interpretation of his duties to parliament and the government included the right to make representations to the CBC.

They debated the issue briefly during the Commons question period in the latest round of a continuing scrap over the question of representations to the CBC which, by law, is responsible only to parliament, not to the government.

However, the exchange was halted by Speaker Rene Beaudoin who said the question period was not the time to debate the matter. Later, outside the Commons Mr. Knowles said he plans to raise the matter again when the government asks the House for interim supply, or for advances to enable the government to meet its bills during the summer election months.

Search of Beach Fails to Locate Missing Resident

A police search of the waterfront at low-tide has failed to disclose a trace of an elderly man who disappeared from a nursing home at 1739 Hollywood Crescer early Sunday.

Later Tuesday afternoon another resident of the home found a suit coat and two pairs of eyeglasses on beach rocks at the rear of the home.

They were identified as property of the missing man, Ralph Baby, 71. Clarence Allen spotted them in a walk along the beach.

Building in City Shows Increase

Value of new construction in Victoria increased in March. There were 580 permits issued last month and value of work started was $719,562. In March last year total value was $555,164.

Total of new building values for the first three months of 1957 is $2,046,987 compared with $1,619,077 in the same period of 1956.

Officials said the increase was due in part to the new federal government hydrographic survey wharf and the Canada Trust Building at View and Broad Streets.

City Woman's Sister Succumbs in England

Mrs. A. Norris, 732 Fort Street, has received news by cable of the death from leukemia of her sister, Mrs. Adelaide Brown, in Gillingham, Kent, Eng.

Mrs. Brown leaves a husband; two sisters, Mrs. Norris and Mrs. W. Goldring in England; two brothers, Edward and Victor Fairbrother, also in England.

A family reunion was held in 1948 when Mrs. Norris spent an extended holiday in the British Isles.

Moves to Adopt Single Time Zone

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan legislature, in a vote which cut across party lines, Thursday adopted a recommendation that a modified, single time zone system be established in the province.

The vote was 28 to 21 with eight CCF and 13 Liberals in opposition. The three Social Credit MLAs sided with the other government members.

The recommendation, proposed by the legislative committee on municipal law, is that the province be placed on Mountain Standard Time in winter and Central Standard time in summer. At present Saskatchewan is split into irregular MST and CST zones with various communities adopting daylight time in summer.

Outside the House, Premier Douglas said the matter now will have to be thrashed out by the cabinet. It would be impossible to make any change this year, since it would entail altering at least 20 statutes.

Bailiff Pushed Against Door, Cut by Glass

City bailiff Charles de Macedo was injured Wednesday night in a unique attack by an unidentified man.

He was checking the front door of a shop at 615 Fort in his capacity of bailiff about 11 p.m. when a man in a fawn coat pushed him through the door's glass panel.

Police took him to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was treated for cuts to the wrist and cheek.

Mr. de Macedo said his assailant, about five feet, nine inches, ran east on Fort, north on Broad and escaped.

Fruit Probe Told Evidence Was 'Hearsay'

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Charges of inefficiency, incompetence and negligence made against B.C. Fruit Processors were handed a setback Thursday before the MacPhee Royal Commission investigating B.C.'s fruit industry.

The sole witness produced by M. J. dePlyffer admitted he had no technical knowledge of the operation of the processors' juice plant, and that most of his information was of a "hearsay" nature. The witness was George Yochim, a former employee of the processors.

In addition, Dean E. D. MacPhee was informed that Mr. dePlyffer's other witness, Cyril Weeks, dealers' service representative for B.C. Fruit Processors, declined to appear before the commission because he had no technical knowledge of the plant operation.

The only other witness to appear to support the East Kelowna charges was Peter Sperling, a former employee of the juice plant, who substantiated charges made by N. P. Casorso that "thousands of cases of canned goods... were dumped, covered by bulldozers and never mentioned in the balance sheet."

COMMISSIONER ANNOYED
Professor MacPhee, showing considerable annoyance at "hearsay" testimony, told Mr. dePlyffer: "We are not trying to get hearsay evidence. It is of no use to the commission and only delays other proceedings."

The commissioner intimated that he would deal specifically with the dePlyffer charges when he writes his report.

The dePlyffer charges alleged that consumer demand for vinegar had dropped because processors had been unable to maintain a consistent strength; that errors had been made in processing glaze cherries; that a large portion of the 1955 pie-filling pack had to be re-processed, and that the true figure of plant upkeep, equipment and maintenance and capital cost allowance was not shown in the financial statement.

Supreme Court to Rule On Sommers Bank Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP)—The examination of the bank records of former British Columbia lands and forests minister Robert Sommers was postponed Thursday pending an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Harvey Bowering, counsel for Sommers, told the British Columbia court of appeal that an application is being made before the Supreme Court of Canada to dispute the validity of the bank examination order.

Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan had given permission to Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy last Oct. 4 to examine three days' records of the bank accounts of Sommers, H. W. and J. M. Gray, Pacific Coast Services, C. D. Schultz and Co. Ltd., and B.C. Forest Products and Evergreen Lumber Co.

Sommers appeal from the order was dismissed by the court of appeal last Friday. When Sturdy arranged to begin investigations, Sommers counsel obtained a stay from the court of appeal.

Canadian Scots To Commemorate Vimy Anniversary

Fortieth anniversary of Vimy Ridge will be commemorated by Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) in a church parade Sunday at 11 a.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Parade, consisting of headquarters personnel, Victoria and Sidney Scottish Cadet Corps, members of the regimental association and women's auxiliary to the regiment will move from Bay Street Armoury at 10.20 a.m.

A short memorial service to fallen members of the regiment will be held at the unit's memorial cross in Pioneer Square where wreaths will be placed after the church service.

All ex-members of the Scottish are invited.

Dramatic Defence Plea Ends Adams Poison Trial

Jury Asked to Rule Widow's Death Was Inevitable

LONDON (CP)—The defence for Dr. John Bodkin Adams rested its case with dramatic suddenness today and appealed to the jury to free the 58-year-old society doctor accused of murder.

The trial has been adjourned for the weekend. It is expected to go to the jury late Monday after the prosecution finishes summing up.

Chief defence counsel Geoffrey Lawrence argued that Adams was only trying to "ease the misery" of the widow he is charged with drugging to death to inherit a chest of silver and a Rolls Royce car.

Leaving toward the jury of 10 men and two women in Old Bailey courtroom, the defence lawyer told in a quiet voice why he did not put Adams into the witness box to tell his story of the death of Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell in Eastbourne in 1950. Emphasizing the "strain" which he said Adams had been living under since his arrest five months ago, Lawrence declared he had decided against requiring him to "endure the ordeal" of testifying.

Lawrence said Adams' records on the Morrell case had been destroyed and that by taking the stand he would have been asked "to cast back his memory over the gulf of six years."

"At every stage there would have been the terrible realization that one failure of recollection, one inaccuracy, however innocent, would be seized on and might well be put before you as an indication of his guilt."

Lawrence said the issue was not whether Adams was a "good" or "bad" doctor in prescribing drugs but whether he is guilty of murder.

WIFE-KILLING SUSPECT SUICIDES IN PRISON

MONTREAL (CP)—Edward Alexander Ven-groff, 41, charged Wednesday with the revolver shooting of his wife on a busy mid-town street, was found hanged today in his cell at Bordeaux jail.

One of his last requests had been for permission to attend the funeral of his 30-year-old estranged wife, shot Tuesday while walking to her job in Royal Victorian Hospital.

His wife, who left him two months ago saying she wanted a divorce, died an hour after being hit by four bullets, fired at close range. Before losing consciousness she gasped out a telephone number which led police to her husband.

Two Suspects Held in Fatal Bar Bombing

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two signboard laborers were booked on suspicion of murder today in the setting of a gasoline fire that fatally burned six persons in a bar Thursday night.

Booked were Clyde Bates, 36, muscular boss of a three-man signboard wrecking crew, and one of his workmen, Oscar S. Brenhaug, 44.

The coroner said five persons died at the scene on a quiet street in south-central Los Angeles. A woman died later and at least five others were injured.

Police said the bomb apparently was thrown through the

Civic Leaders To Try Again On Centennial

By PETE LOUDON

A new, top-level attempt was launched today to reach agreement on a mutual centennial project for Greater Victoria.

A "try-again" meeting by district municipal and government representatives will be called by Mayor Percy Scarran.

The action came hard on the heels of Greater Victoria Centennial Committee's decision Thursday night to abandon the joint scheme.

That committee, composed of aldermen and councillors and appointed representatives from Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich and Victoria, will limit itself now to planning 1958 celebrations.

MANY TO ATTEND

The new conference will be attended by the mayor, district reeves and members of the legislature.

The mayor said he would call the meeting when he was told a Times survey of elected officials showed general disappointment that no agreement had been reached so far.

"I would be in favor of exploring again the whole situation, this time at the reeves-mayor-member level. I think it would be a pity to go ahead with several dinky projects instead of one major one. I will try to get a committee together to work out something," the mayor stated.

WURTELE WILLING

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt had stated earlier: "I'd agree right away if the mayor would appoint a new committee to go into this matter. I'm quite willing to sit in."

He said he felt it would be "crazy" to go ahead with separate projects. He doubted Esquimalt council would approve a separate project.

Problem facing the new group stems from a provincial government promise in 1955 to provide each municipality with a grant of 60 cents per capita for a centennial year project "of lasting value and significance."

In order to receive the grant each municipality must match it and the final choice of memorial must be approved by the B.C. cabinet.

It was proposed that in metropolitan areas, different municipalities should lump together their grants for a major project.

Patient Was 'Already Dying'

"Pause and think," Lawrence appealed to the jurors. "If this doctor for some diabolical reason, having looked after this old widow for two years or more, suddenly made up his mind, and this is the prosecution's case, to kill her, God knows there was no reason."

"Death was inevitable, and you may think imminent," Lawrence added that what Adams is accused of was murdering with malice aforethought an old woman "of 81 years of age who was a patient at a time when she was already dying and had no more than possibly a few weeks or a few days to live."

"Is not that a most extraordinary case, that a doctor should be accused of murdering one of his patients when she was already dying? With no intervention on his part, the end was inevitable."

Mrs. Morrell died in November, 1950. The body was cremated as she asked in her will and the ashes were scattered over the English Channel off Eastbourne where Dr. Adams had a prosperous practice among retired wealthy old folk.

Lawrence had called only two witnesses for the defence, a medical expert and a nurse. The trial, the longest in history of Old Bailey, is in its 15th day.

Lawrence opened the case for the defence only two days ago after the prosecution, led by Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, called a string of 19 witnesses to support its accusation that Adams murdered the bed-ridden widow with an overdose of drugs.

The bespectacled, portly doctor sat impassively in the prisoner's dock as his lawyer opened his final address to the jury.

Lawrence stood up, flung back his gown, thrust one hand in his trouser pocket and rested the other on a pile of legal volumes and notes.

The jury members sat motionless, their eyes riveted on the bewigged lawyer as he told them their duty would be clear on the evidence already produced.

"We need not take up your time, or anybody else's time in calling any further evidence," he stated.

Norman Death Stirs World Outcry, U.S. 'Red Witch Hunt' Assailed

(From Times News Services)

From many parts of the free world today there came bitter reaction to Thursday's suicide of Canadian Ambassador to Egypt, E. Herbert Norman.

The viewpoints expressed were almost unanimous in condemning the action of the U.S. Senate's sub-committee on internal security for releasing testimony implicating Mr. Norman had had Communist associations long after he had been cleared of such charges.

It was generally accepted that this action brought about his leap to death from a Cairo building.

Committee Under Fire in Washington

Even in Washington, DC, the U.S. capital, the committee was under fire.

The Washington Post and Times Herald charged the U.S. Senate internal security sub-committee is "directly responsible for the persecution" which may have led to the suicide of Mr. Norman.

In an editorial, the newspaper accuses the sub-committee of "a most meddlesome interference in an area where they have no competence at all" and said the tragic event "ought at last" to lead the U.S. Senate "to put an effective check upon the irresponsibility" of the sub-committee.

The Washington Evening Star takes the editorial view that Norman's death was "too tragic in itself for anybody to add to it with overwrought and grossly simplified interpretations blaming it on the Senate internal security sub-committee."

The Star suggests the sub-committee had shown "decidedly poor judgment" in making public "filmy hearsay evidence" involving Mr. Norman but said it was sure "our friends in Canada will place the matter in proper perspective and not let it blight the good relations existing between our two countries."

The Post accompanied its editorial with a cartoon showing a skeleton reaching into a sub-committee file labelled "hearsay reports" and withdrawing a folder containing the name "Herbert Norman." The caption read "His Name Just Happened to Come Up."

The Post questioned the sub-committee's reasons for "dredging up in 1957" the "discredited" accusations which a Columbia University professor had made against Mr. Norman in 1951.

"What reason was there for making public, against the state department's expressed wishes, the transcript of this hearing held in executive session?"

"In a statement which attempts without the slightest sympathy to justify the callousness of his conduct, Mr. Morris (sub-committee counsel Robert Morris) says the testimony 'may have an important bearing on our internal security.'"

"It has no bearing whatever on our internal security. Mr. Morris and the internal security sub-committee have been guilty matter in proper perspective of a most meddlesome interference..."

RCAF Plans to Fly Ashes Home

In Ottawa the Canadian government has ordered a Royal Canadian Air Force plane out of London to Cairo to fly home the ashes of the late Canadian Ambassador.

Decision as to whether or not to make use of the RCAF aircraft was left to Mr. Norman's wishes.

The Ambassador's widow has suffered a severe shock and was under medical care throughout Wednesday. The staff of the Canadian Embassy in Cairo, however, headed by A. R. Kilgour, the first secretary, was doing everything possible to facilitate the return of the Ambassador's ashes to Canada.

The Egyptian government has offered all possible aid.

Funeral services for Mr. Norman man at Cairo will be held Saturday at St. Andrew's Church of Scotland.

The body of Mr. Norman then will be flown to Rome for cremation. Mrs. Norman will leave Cairo within a few days to return to Canada.

Meanwhile, the Canadian government has no intention of "sending any notes of any kind" to Washington in connection with the case, a spokesman for the prime minister's office said today.

An external affairs department official said the same thing. He pointed out that External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson summed up Canada's official attitude by saying, "There's no need to make an

FEDERAL SPENDING HITS ALL-TIME HIGH

Social Security Payments Skyrocket Ottawa Outlays

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris today tabled in the Commons further supplementary estimates totalling $94,750,000 for 1957-58, bringing total federal expenditures for the current fiscal year to an all-time high of $5,334,000,000.

The supplementary estimates proposed today total $94,750,000 to cover budgetary proposals of increased social security payments and a boost in Maritime freight rates assistance.

The former all-time record was set in the 1943-44 war years when spending reached $5,322,000,000. The previous peace-time record, set last fiscal year ended March 31, was $5,157,000,000.

The new high this fiscal year includes about $475,000,000 in old age and other pensions not in effect when the wartime record was established.

Today's supplementary estimates included:

1. $24,500,000 for a $1-a-month

increase to certain age groups of family allowance recipients.

2. $45,000,000 to cover a proposed $6-a-month increase to $46, for old-age pensioners 70 and over.

3. $3,000,000 for the federal government's 50 per cent share of a maximum $6 increase to $46 in old-age assistance to the needy between 65 and 69, shared equally with the provinces.

4. $400,000 for a similar increase for the blind.

5. $1,000,000 for a similar increase in disabled persons' pensions.

6. $5,350,000 for increased allowances to "burned out" war veterans and dependents.

7. $14,900,000 for increased disability pensions for war veterans. The increases in family allowances become effective Sept. 1. All the other increased payments take effect July 1.

Long's some o' them U.S. senators kin git themselves publicity witch-huntin', they don't care which witch.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Gracious God, why am I so filled with fear, so disturbed, so over-wrought? Thou art not dead, nor is Christ thy Son, who said, "All power is mine, both in heaven and earth." I reach up, great God, power, to touch thy throne. For help is there, and I will claim it now. Never leave me, Father. Never forsake me. My trust is in thee both now and forever; because of Christ, Amen.

Shivering Reporter Bundles Up But St. Laurent Just Walks On

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — It was cold and miserable early today in Ottawa with driving sleet coating the sidewalks and streets with a sheen of slippery ice.

A solitary figure strode along Sussex Street keeping a firm footing on the glare ice and apparently heedless of the chill wind and sleet turning to cold rain, sweeping down the street off the Ottawa River.

It was Prime Minister St. Laurent. He had dispensed with his chauffeur-driven limousine, on one of the most miserable days for walking this spring.

A Press Gallery reporter drove past.

He suddenly realized he had passed the prime minister. Making a U-turn he pulled alongside, rolled down the window and asked incredulously if Mr. St. Laurent, in fact, was making the half-mile walk to work for pleasure.

"Yes, thank you," the 75-year-old government leader replied with a smile.

The 35-year-old reporter, quickly rolled up the window, huddled into his topcoat, turned up his car heater, and drove off leaving the prime minister to complete his constitutional.

Background of Events in Norman Suicide

WASHINGTON (UP)—How did an ambassador of a friendly country Canada's E. Herbert Norman become involved in hearings of a senate subcommittee charged with investigating the administration of U.S. security laws?

The story began several years ago when congressional committees began delving into the Communist conquest of China after Second World War. Charges were aired that certain career state department officials did not oppose the Chinese Communists strongly, and therefore helped pave the way for their seizure of China.

Carrying this forward the senate internal security subcommittee, which has done much of the past investigating, now has begun questioning state department officials in the Middle East who were named in the earlier inquiries.

For example, Rep. Walter H. Judd (R-Minn.) testified last May about personnel serving in the American Embassy in China in 1944.

BACKED COMMUNISTS

He said that when he stopped in Chungking at that time, junior members of the staff were following what "later proved to be the Communist party line"—they wanted to ditch Chiang Kai-Shek and back the Communists to fight Japan.

"It was common conversation," said Judd, "that the leaders were the so-called four Johns: John Carter Vincent, John Stewart Service, John Paton Davies and John Emerson."

Vincent, Service and Davies have been investigated at length and are now out of the state department. John K. Emerson is now counsellor—No. 2 man—in the American Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon. He was brought back to testify in a closed session March 12 and the record of the hearing was made public March 14.

Emmerson was asked about Norman. He said, he had known the Canadian since 1940 but never heard anything to indicate that he was a Communist.

REP. WALTER H. JUDD

But sub-committee counsel Robert Morris said the group had "quite a few security reports which have a great deal of information to the effect that he (Norman) is a Communist."

And why was Emmerson asked about Norman?

The sub-committee is understood to have several references to Norman in its files. In 1951, Prof. Karl Wittfogel of Columbia University testified that a young Canadian named Norman belonged to a New York Communist cell in prewar years.

A former state department official, Eugene Dorman, had testified that Emmerson and Norman were close associates in Japan in 1946.

HEADED UN DELEGATION

Norman by 1951 was head of Canada's UN delegation and of the American section of the external affairs ministry.

Morris also said at the March 12 hearing that Norman was once secretary of "a Communist organization" known as "American Friends of the Chinese People" and later executive secretary of its Canadian affiliate.

Morris then read a security report from an unidentified source which said Norman was associated with a Japanese named Tsuru Shiget, who is now a lecturer at Harvard University. The report said the FBI arrested Tsuru in 1942 to send him home to Japan and that Norman approached the FBI as a high-ranking Canadian official and tried to take custody of Tsuru's papers.

Morris quoted the FBI as reporting the papers included a 1937 letter about a Marxist study group at Harvard which discussed a paper on "American Imperialism" by E. H. Norman.

Morris also quoted the report as saying that Norman was identified in February, 1940, as a member of the Communist party.

Morris insisted after Norman's death that the subcommittee was not investigating the Canadian diplomat, though about half the questioning of Emmerson related to Norman.

Among Tsuru's papers was a letter about the study group addressed to William T. Parry, now an instructor at the University of Buffalo. The committee plans to call Parry to testify April 22.

Tsuru testified last week that he never joined the Communist party, though he admitted he acted, spoke and wrote like a Communist in 1936-37 while a student at Harvard.

He explained Norman's effort to get his papers as an effort by Norman, a Japanese scholar, to pick up some Japanese history books that Tsuru had left behind.

Dr. Karl Heinrich Niebyl of New York City, who allegedly helped draft some of the papers found in Tsuru's apartment, invoked the fifth amendment 41 times before the subcommittee, Thursday. He refused to answer all questions about Communism, including whether he is or was a Communist.

After the first release of Emmerson's testimony and Morris' charge about Norman, the Canadian government protested, and the state department asked the subcommittee not to bring up Norman's name in public again.

Canada said Norman had been cleared of the charges. The subcommittee shortly released more testimony in which Emmerson made some corrections in his earlier statements. But he repeated that he had never heard Norman say anything indicating the Canadian was a Communist.

Canadian newspaper editorial comment on the death of Canadian Ambassador E. Herbert Norman in Cairo Thursday, follows:

Montreal Herald—"One is moved to wonder how many other people have been driven close to the same final point of despair by these senate subcommittee proceedings? How many equally innocent Americans have suffered character and career assassination at these hands? What happened in Cairo was murder by slander indeed."

'SADISTIC METHODS' BLAMED FOR NORMAN DEATH

Stop 'Assassinating the Innocent' United Church Charges U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church of Canada called upon the president and Congress of the United States Thursday to stop "politicians and partisans from assassinating the characters of innocent men."

In a statement on the apparent suicide of A. Herbert Norman, Canadian Ambassador to Egypt, Dr. Ernest E. Long, secretary of the general council of the United Church, said the blame for Mr. Norman's death rests on the U.S. Senate subcommittee which accused him of being a Communist.

He accused the subcommittee of "shocking and sadistic methods" and said that "fear, hysteria and unprincipled political ambition" have carried security measures too far in the U.S.

Mr. Long said that Mr. Norman came from a family which gave church missions in Japan outstanding leadership for two generations. He called upon the National Council of the Churches in Christ in America to hold an emergency meeting to prevent further incidents such as that which led to Mr. Norman's death.

Dr. Harold Bennett, principal of Victoria College, which Mr. Norman attended, said he felt the charges were completely false.

"If the external affairs minister is satisfied," he said, "that should be enough for anybody."

Mr. Norman many years ago in the Institute of Pacific Affairs. This was given a sinister interpretation by General MacArthur's aides and precipitated later the smearing of his name."

In Cairo expressions of sympathy continued to pour into the Canadian Embassy from all parts of the world.

JAPAN SORROWFUL

From Tokyo came word that major Japanese newspapers were expressing editorial opinions of sorrow and bitterly criticizing the "Red witch hunt."

In Japan, where Norman started his distinguished diplomatic career, the big national daily Yomiuri, which is usually pro-American, termed the recent committee summons to Prof. Shiget Tsuru, school friend of Norman as "insolence ... that can develop into a major thorn in Japan-U.S. relations."

Asahi, the largest Japanese paper, says "the U.S. Congress went too far in digging into 20-year-old events—Tsuru's friendship with Norman at Harvard."

Mainichi, another big daily, says "McCarthyism is still alive."

RECKLESSNESS

The Times of London refers in an editorial to "the terrible consequences of the committee's recklessness," and U.S. State Secretary Dulles sent Pearson a message of regret and condolences.

Norman's death excited the Japanese particularly because he had been born in that country.

front door of the Club Mecca by three men who had been ejected earlier when they tried to dance with one of the cocktail bar's regular woman customers.

Assistant Fire Chief R. A. Williams said the men sloshed a bucket of gasoline, or some other highly inflammable liquid, onto the floor and then threw a match in after it.

"It went up like a blowtorch," said the bartender, Larry Fenton, 24, who escaped uninjured out the back door.

Others weren't that lucky. One male customer bolted into a corner where firemen later found his blackened, charred body.

Two other bodies were found crumpled in one of the cafe's four booths. Bodies of two other customers were found in the washroom, apparently overcome by smoke.

Inside, the small cafe was a blackened ruin. The 20-foot-long bar was a charred wreck. Shattered, blackened bottles stood in front of a smoke-obscured mirror.

FLEE THROUGH GUNFIRE

The three men who threw the improvised "Molotov cocktail" escaped in a car amidst a barrage of gunfire from a passer-by. Vernon Waggy, 24, told police he was walking down the street when he saw the men begin running as the explosion and flames shattered the front of the cafe.

"I pulled out a .32-calibre automatic which I carry for protection and fired at them—I think I hit one," Waggy said. Police said there were three bullet holes in a parked car in front of the cafe.

Art Hartner said he was driving home when he saw the cocktail lounge belch flames onto the sidewalk.

"The whole place was a wall of flame and I saw a girl stumble out on the sidewalk," Hartner, a truck driver, said. "She was all on fire, her hair, her clothes, even her shoes."

"I wrapped her in my coat and tried to beat out the flames as she cried: 'Why did they do it? What about my children?'"

The woman tentatively identified by police as Jackie McGinnis, in her early 20s, was dead on arrival at hospital.

Hospital Insurance Plans Move Ahead

(From Times News Services)

The House has approved in principle legislation enabling the federal government to enter into share-the-cost agreements with the provinces for a national hospital insurance plan.

The measure received speedy second reading—all parties agreeing on the principle of the bill—but came under close clause-by-clause scrutiny by the opposition which urged changes in certain details.

For example, Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre) said the government should revise its policy—written into the bill—that the national plan will come into effect only when six provinces representing a majority of Canadians agree to sign.

So far, five provinces—British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Newfoundland—have agreed to enter the plan. They represent more than 50 per cent of the population.

Mr. Knowles argued that for all practical purposes the federal requirement has been met by the five agreeing provinces, since they represent a majority of the provinces.

Under the plan, the federal government is committed to pay half the insurance costs for standard ward care in general hospitals and diagnostic services.

Should Pay 80%, Contends CCF Whip

Mr. Knowles contended that in view of the fact the central government takes the major share of the Canadian taxation dollar, it should offer to pay 80 per cent—instead of 50 per cent—of the plan.

Claude Ellis (CCF, Regina) said the government should have proposed a general health insurance plan.

Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary North) protested against an indication by Health Minister Martin—an affirmative nodding of the head—that the 6,000 white population of the Yukon and Northwest Territories would hear the hospital insurance costs for the 6,000 Indians and 6,000 Eskimos in the areas now paid by the federal government.

Mr. Martin said the federal government will negotiate with the councils of the Yukon and the Territories as if they were provinces.

Replied Mr. Harkness: "I hope this government will not force the Northwest Territories into this scheme and thus force onto the non-Eskimo and non-Indian population the burden for hospital care for the whole population."

Budget Changes Given Approval

The House gave preliminary approval Thursday to various budgetary changes in federal income, sales and excise taxes, succession duties and tariff rates.

The budget resolutions were approved after relatively little debate on details, thus paving the way for introduction of bills to amend the Income Tax Act, the Dominion Succession Duty Act, the Excise Act, the Excise Tax Act and the Customs Tariff.

One proposed income tax change, enabling all taxpayers to claim a blanket $100 as a minimum deduction from taxable income to cover claims for medical costs, charitable gifts and union dues without production of vouchers, was criticized on the ground it does not go far enough.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), said the concession means only that basic tax exemptions have been increased by $100.

It would be of no help to taxpayers whose medical costs are higher than $100 but not enough to pass the 3 per cent floor on medical expenses. The CCF has repeatedly urged that the floor be abolished and that all medical expenses be deductible for income tax purposes.

A single person now would be able to claim a basic exemption of $1,100 instead of $1,000.

Canada-U.S. River Control Agency Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—Creation of an International Waterways Agency to get water resources development in the Pacific Northwest, Western Canada and Alaska off "dead centre" was proposed Thursday by Senator Richard Neuberger (Dem., Ore.).

The agency, which would be created after negotiations with Canada, would have authority to plan projects on international rivers, co-ordinate their operations and allocate project benefits between the two countries.

Neuberger said his proposal, introduced in a form of a resolution, was "compelled" by Monday's U.S. Supreme Court decision refusing to review protests against the licensing of the Idaho Power Company to build three low-level dams on the Snake River, and by the recent Canadian announcement that it is prepared to spend $300,000,000 in developing the upper Columbia River and its tributaries.

The proposed agency would have jurisdiction over all international rivers, or tributaries which contribute to the flow of such river, in the area north of the 42nd parallel (the Oregon-California border) where waters flow into the Pacific Ocean or Bering Sea. Subject to such a commission, Neuberger said, would be such Canadian projects as Mica Creek and Arrow Lakes (Murphy Creek), proposed U.S. dams at Libby, Mont., and the Similkameen in Washington State, and the Taiya project which would divert Yukon River waters to tidewater.

Tough Bargaining

IN DOMESTIC POLITICS THE probable consequences of the Canadian Government's policy on the Columbia River are clear enough—electrical power will be developed, at minimum cost, under public ownership. For Mr. Bennett can hardly reject Ottawa's offer to pay a large part of the cost of damming the river and distributing its electricity.

But the results in international politics are even more important. In short, the Federal Government has pulled the rug from under Mr. Bennett's plan to let the American interests dam the Columbia and secure a large part of its electricity.

The basic quarrel between Victoria and Ottawa is now fully clarified.

Mr. Bennett (as in the abortive Kaiser dam scheme) would allow American interests to build the master Columbia dam at Mica Creek and then present it to British Columbia "free".

In return, American power plants, south of the border, would vastly increase their output of electricity, once the upper reaches of the river were controlled by the dam, or dams. The Americans would keep most of these downstream benefits and we would export electricity on a huge scale in the form of water.

The Federal Government will never agree to this alienation of our natural resources. It is opposed to power exports however they may be disguised.

Therefore, in its present negotiations with the United States, Canada will insist on securing a large part, perhaps half, of the extra power produced in the United States as a result of the Canadian dams upstream. And to make this possible it is prepared to invest heavily in a publicly-owned power development in British Columbia.

Mr. Bennett may not like these arrangements, though he has confined himself so far to an attack on the Federal Government for revealing its plans to the press before he heard about them officially. But in the end Mr. Bennett cannot alienate the Columbia's powers even if he rejects the Federal Government's offer of financial help.

Only the Federal Government can permit or prohibit power exports in the form of water. As in the case of the proposed Kaiser dam, the Federal Government can cancel any provincial scheme affecting the flow of an international river.

Ottawa's policy was not directed only at the British Columbia Government. It was also directed at the Government of the United States.

Ottawa is saying, in the polite language of diplomacy, that it intends to drive a hard bargain with the United States on the key issue of downstream benefits.

In announcing the new Federal policy, Mr. Sinclair said that Canadians should stand together in dealing with their powerful neighbor and demonstrate, as in the case of the St. Lawrence Seaway, that they could build their own public works, if necessary, without foreign assistance; whereas Mr. Bennett would prefer to call in American capital and reward it with Canadian electricity.

Anyway, so long as the present Federal Government is in office, Mr. Bennett cannot duplicate the Kaiser dam project at Mica Creek. The federal policy of refusing to export power stands beyond his reach.

These things are easily understood. It is difficult, however, to understand the latest statements of Mr. Grauer, the able head of the B.C. Power Corporation.

Naturally disappointed to find that his company cannot possess the Columbia, which probably will be placed under public ownership, Mr. Grauer says he fears a power shortage in the Vancouver area. A public development on the Columbia, he believes, will be unnecessarily delayed and therefore he must consider the establishment of thermal plants whose electricity would be relatively expensive.

If there is any delay it will not result from the policy of public ownership. It will result from prolonged negotiations between Ottawa and Washington on the issue of downstream benefits. Even if the B.C. Power Corporation, or any private concern, were given possession of the Columbia the international negotiations would not be speeded up in the least.

With good sense in Ottawa and Washington, the negotiations should not take very long and meanwhile the Federal and British Columbia Governments should agree on a plan of development to be started the moment the negotiations are complete.

Then perhaps eight or ten years would be required to build the Mica Creek dam. Before that time a power famine might well develop in Vancouver but it can be prevented by quick development of smaller dams south of Mica Creek.

While power is quickly available at several points it would be folly indeed to embark on costly thermal plants.

Peace Breezes Over Formosa

WHILE INTERNATIONAL storms rage in other parts of the world, relative calm seems to prevail now on the Formosa Strait.

With it come peace rumors affecting the two Chinas. The Nationalist Government's talk of invading the China mainland has apparently been discarded. United States Defence Commander, Vice-Admiral Stuart H. Ingersoll, in a statement from Okinawa, has bluntly refuted that theme by saying the Nationalist Army is being trained for defence only, not offence.

There is no formal suggestion that Chiang Kai-shek and his adherents have considered the communist offer to permit Nationalist Formosa to become an autonomous province within the new China. The offer, however, has been heard.

Should the United States effect serious cuts in aid to Formosa, or should it show any inclination to recognize Peking—a course still violently opposed by many influential U.S. public figures—the proposal might sound more appealing to Nationalist ears.

Beyond that, Formosa is sensitive to the attitude of overseas Chinese who, however much they might dislike communism, have had occasion to notice what Peking can do for them that Taipei cannot. The success of Premier Chou En-lai in negotiating a dual citizenship for Indonesia's 2,000,000 Chinese is remembered.

With Vietnam taking action to discriminate against residents who are not Vietnamese, and with the position of resident Chinese uncertain when Malay gains its new status, these are important considerations for the overseas Chinese who have previously given aid and comfort to the Nationalists.

Such conditions color the peace rumors—though it should be emphasized that they are still rumors.

"But," as Mr. Gordon Walker, a distinguished U.S. newspaperman writes from Hong Kong "many (Nationalists) — especially those who have not amassed a comfortable pension fund in Swiss or American banks — might estimate realistically that a job as an official in an autonomous Formosan government was preferable to slow but sure political extinction."

Why Delay the Benefits?

REPORTS OF THE U.S. PUBLIC Health Service show that the speed with which communities in that country are adopting fluoridation of their water supplies is increasing each year.

In 1956, fluoridation was made available to more than seven million additional persons. During the period 1951 to 1955, the average increase was four millions a year. In the first three months of this year, 55 new communities have adopted fluoridation. The total of persons in the United States enjoying the benefits of this scientific progress at March 1, was 31,416,000, living in 1,492 communities.

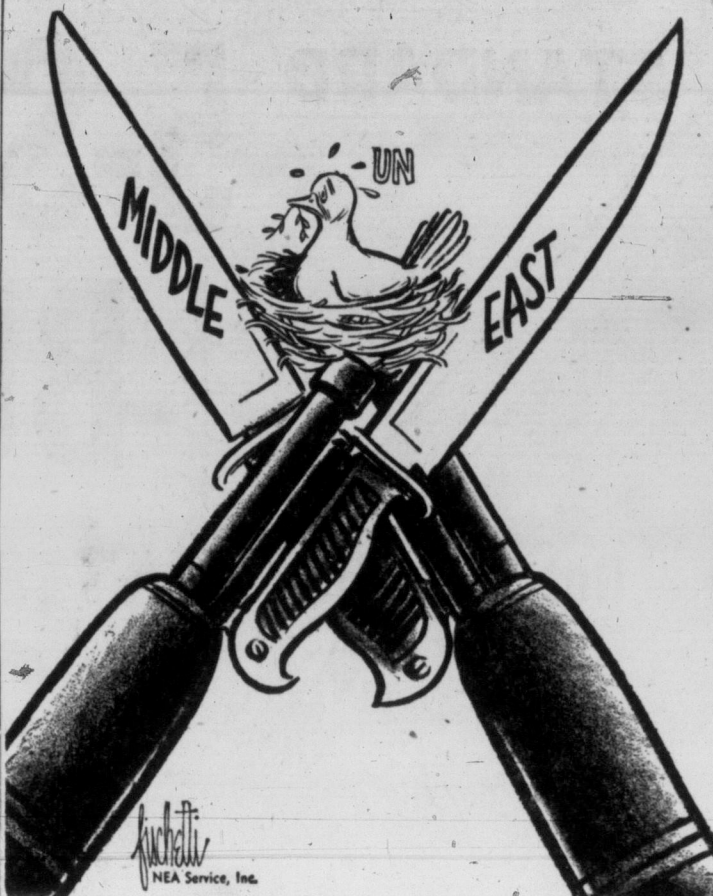

These are figures which cannot be ignored by opponents of fluoridation. They indicate that, like most new ideas, fluoridation of public water supplies is approached with hesitation at first, but that as time goes on and the weight of expert opinion is felt, the pace of acceptance increases.

As Dr. J. Mather, professor of public health at the University of British Columbia says, fluoridation of water supplies "is the most important public health discovery since diphtheria toxoid." He sees it as "the first real break" in man's fight against tooth decay.

The day will come when people will look back at the pre-fluoridation era and wonder why the step was so delayed. Those who oppose it will be regarded in the same light as those who fought antiseptic methods, vaccination, the covering of open drains, and other health progress. How long will Victoria deny itself the benefits of fluoridation?

A Question of Identity

A NOTED Vancouver writer and humorist has commented on the magnificent display of paintings of bird life in the latest issue of Maclean's Magazine. The pictures, from the brush of Victoria's Fenwick Lansdowne, draw Mr. Nicol's praise. But they also evoke a complaint. Excellent as the paintings are, he says, Mr. Lansdowne's birds bear no relation to the birds Mr. Nicol sees. And this, he asserts, has long been a problem with him. Even the celebrated Audubon's reproductions never included the birds Mr. Nicol sees. He sees birds with white beards and red beards; with red, white and blue stripes and sometimes spots. But nowhere in the birdbooks do these specimens appear.

Tobin

I can fully share the feeling of frustration that this sort of thing produces. But my problem is not birds. I haven't really seen any birds since I quit staring around quite a few years back. No, my problem is with people. None of them seem to look the way they ought to. And far too many of them, instead of looking like themselves, look like people who look like them.

This is the sort of thing I run into. You've met a woman, say, a number of times. Each time she wore a hat. Then some day you see her without the hat. "Why," you say to yourself, "there's a woman who looks just like Mrs. X." And Mrs. X rightly feels offended that you pass her without further recognition.

Two Other Guys

Or suppose there's some burly chap you speak to on the bus all winter. Some summer day on the beach you come upon a rather frail fellow in a bathing suit and think, "If it wasn't for the body I'd swear that was Joe Doakes." And you walk on. Of course, it is Joe, and he wonders what's got into you that you can't give him a civil greeting.

The truth is that a good many people are very elusive in appearance. It takes very little change of costume, hat or facial expression to transform them from familiar persons into strangers who somewhat resemble the person you know but who of course cannot be him.

Once you get this idea in your head, you find the world is full of look-alikes. It's not just the world of turning up for lectures and filling up notebooks. Examinations are not just a test of memory of what the professor said; they are not even just a matter of hard work. No. What higher education aims at is to teach you to think clearly and to think for yourself—critically, perhaps, even of the professor—on the basis of communicated facts and methods of getting at the true facts. The words "communicated" and "getting at the truth" are not just idle prattling.

Professor Sargent Florence, who held the Chair of Commerce at the University of Birmingham for 27 years.

"THEY SURE SMELL BETTER NOW! HUH, DAD?"

actually encounters the person he thought he'd seen earlier.

It's difficult to account for this, except through my theory that too many people look like people who look like them but aren't, really.

With well-known friends, of course, this sort of thing is less likely to happen. People who know each other quite well—I mean well enough, say, to be nasty to each other on purpose—rarely get the other fellow confused with someone else. But it would be interesting if we could get outside our own bodies now and then, and see if we would recognize ourselves. That would be quite a test of familiarity.

You would see some awkward form, lurching along the street toward you and think, "What's the matter with that poor goof? Has he got flat feet or housemaid's knee or something?" Then, with mounting horror, you would recognize him as yourself.

Self Criticism

Or perhaps, if you are of the always opposite sex, you might sharply criticize the dress and makeup of the woman approaching you. "Where on earth does she find HER clothes?" you might mutter. But on closer approach you see something more familiar about her and it dawns on you with disgust that this is indeed yourself you are looking at.

It has always seemed to me that if Narcissus had been a woman he would not have admired himself so, while gazing into his pool. Women are much more critical in this regard, and far from admiring herself all day Miss Narcissus would quickly have undertaken to improve what she saw.

No doubt this lies behind the popularity of fads in feminine looks. The advertisements tell the story: here is this year's coiffure; so-and-so is the complexion for April; the round face (or oval or square) is the shape for this season.

Perhaps that's why so many women so confusingly look alike. It's certainly getting harder to tell them apart—even to tell them anything.

LEARNING TO THINK

University education is not a stuffing of adolescent minds with a mass of facts. It is not just a matter of turning up for lectures and filling up notebooks. Examinations are not just a test of memory of what the professor said; they are not even just a matter of hard work. No. What higher education aims at is to teach you to think clearly and to think for yourself—critically, perhaps, even of the professor—on the basis of communicated facts and methods of getting at the true facts. The words "communicated" and "getting at the truth" are not just idle prattling.

Professor Sargent Florence, who held the Chair of Commerce at the University of Birmingham for 27 years.

As Our Readers See It

Pensioners and Bingo

Recently mention was made in our local papers of a raid on a bingo game, and very prominently pensioners were singled out as being participants.

Now I am not a pensioner and I am very thankful I have a comfortable warm apartment, but I have very many sincere friends who are on pension, and my heart breaks to hear so many of them telling of their cold cheerless rooms; and how lonely they are. Is it then any wonder when they have an extra dollar to spare that they go to these places where for a couple of hours they are warm, and comfortable, and meet old friends?

Surely when people are old, and through no fault of their own, they have to accept a pension, they should not be deprived of a little pleasure like a game of bingo. I wonder how many of us would like to be told how, and where, to spend our money.

We Canadians pride ourselves that we live in a free country, where we practice "Live and let live."

FAIRPLAY

Money in the Bank

I have read with great interest your letter to Dr. Axel Wenner-Gren. Actually, this is the best letter of its kind I have seen, and I have made it a point to study this matter from its commencement.

My opinion (and it appears to be the opinion of everyone with whom I have talked) is that the Rocky Mountain Trench natural wealth is precisely like money in the bank for the future residents of British Columbia, and that there is no real need to hurry about the disposal of it to anyone, and that when the time is right, and that particular natural resource store should be tapped, why should it not be tapped by a Canadian firm, or at least a firm, as you suggest, of British origin.

I notice that the run of people feel so entirely helpless to know which way to turn for help to bring this whole subject out in the open. They feel that a matter of this importance should be put to the vote of the whole province, and yet do not know which way to go about forcing this issue, or something as effective, with the government.

The majority of people up here are of the opinion that Bennett's government are going to hand this deal over regardless of how the people as a whole feel about it. How, in your opinion, can we demand to know the whole truth about the matter before it is too late?

Would a continual barrage of letters to the principal papers in B.C. do any good?

Your attitude towards this matter has caused such a lot of favorable comment and constructive discussion that, we all feel it is the first very real spearhead, and should be followed up and driven home by every thinking person in the country.

Provincial Finance

The sole reason for imposing the sales tax originally was to finance hospital insurance (two per cent), and relieve hard-pressed municipalities, (one per cent). It was not meant to be a source of revenue for the provincial Government.

It is fantastic that politicians, under a so-called democratic system could transform it in five years to what it is being used for today.

Every citizen who has built a home in B.C. in the last four years should besiege the legislative buildings armed with a tomahawk, looking for scalps.

FROM WASHINGTON

Aftermath of Beck

THE Teamsters Union hearings on Capitol Hill have been wonderful theatre. They had everything—suspense, emotion, spicy revelations, comic relief, and above all a superb cast of characters. Dave Beck, Teamsters' boss, has been brilliantly cast in the central role. His pink pate positively glittered with righteous indignation and injured innocence as he lunged arrogantly back at his Senatorial tormentors, like a snarling badger beset by a terrier pack. Sen. McClellan's dry monotone had precisely the proper "dragnet" intonation, as he forced the infuriated Beck again and again to take refuge in the Fifth Amendment.

The supporting players were equally well cast. Committee counsel Robert Kennedy, for example, has been fine as the idealistic young crusader. Even Sen. McCarthy has done a reasonably convincing imitation of McCarthy, although the old, familiar growl sounds, somehow, like a voice from the grave.

Wider Significance

But, although a political reporter these days often finds himself poaching on the preserve of the drama critic, the Beck hearings have been more than good theatre.

They have been comparable in some ways to the Pecora investigations in the last year of Herbert Hoover's Presidency, which exposed the arrogance and irresponsibility of an important segment of big business, and set the backdrop of the New Deal.

The Beck hearings are also likely to have important consequences. One possible consequence was suggested by Sen. Irving Ives of New York, when he warned Beck that the open shop for union labor might be "the upshot of what you are doing today."

Already, some eighteen states have passed the so-called "right-to-work laws" which gravely weaken labor's bargaining position by outlawing the union shop. Until now, despite a concerted drive by conservative interests (spearheaded by former Congressman Fred Hartley of Taft-Hartley fame) the unions have been able to head off right-to-work legislation in most of the important industrial states.

But after Beck's amazingly arrogant performance, it will be a brave state legislator who will dare to vote against right-to-work laws. There is also a real chance that Federal right-to-work legislation will pass this Congress, in the form of an amendment to the Civil Rights Bill, if the bill reaches the floor.

In the Beck-produced atmosphere, such an amendment might well pass. Again, if the "clean elections" bill reaches the floor, an amendment sharply restricting all labor's political activities will certainly be introduced, probably by Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. And again, such an amendment would have an excellent chance of passing, thanks to Beck.

Democrats Worried

This suggests why the Northern Democrats are almost as worried by the performance as Beck's fellow labor chieftains—this despite the fact that Beck and most of his cohorts have supported the Republicans.

Republicans like to charge that the Northern Democrats are supported by an immense slush fund provided by the unions. Actually, under-the-table money from labor for Democratic candidates is a small fraction of the political contributions of business, most of which goes to Republicans.

But it is true that Democratic candidates in many Northern industrial states, notably Michigan, Wisconsin and western Pennsylvania, are greatly, and in some cases wholly, dependent on labor money and other help from labor. Even without legislation to restrict labor's political activities, Democrats in such areas will suffer.

Caution Likely

They will be hurt because labor will be very cautious in the political atmosphere created by the Teamsters' investigation about taking an active political role.

The Northern Democrats will also be hurt simply because they are identified in the public mind with union labor, just as the Republicans are identified with business.

Predictions are even being heard on Capitol Hill that the McClellan investigation, especially if it continues to put on a good show for months to come, will cost the Democrats control of the House in 1958. However that may be, the arresting drama on Capitol Hill is almost certain to have far-reaching political after-effects.

MONTE ROBERTS

Yesterday Judy Boots Streak, the female-type doggie who lives at our house, announced she is a candidate in the 1957 Miss Victoria Contest.

Since then, many people have asked me how a female-type doggie can enter such a contest.

As a matter of fact, I asked Judy Boots Streak the same question.

"Don't you realize there are rules to this contest?" I asked her.

"I have studied them carefully and I can meet every qualification," JB replied.

"Here's a copy of the rules," I said. "Rule 1, contestant must be a Canadian citizen, a resident of the South Vancouver Island District for at least six months."

"I was born right here as you know very well," JB replied. "In fact, I was born in Oak Bay, but I don't put on airs about it."

"Rule 2," I said. "Contestant must be single and never have been married, divorced, or had marriage annulled."

"I've never been married or ANYTHING," said JB.

"Rule 3," I hurried on. "Contestant must be not less than 18, not more than 22 years old."

"As of January 15, 1957," said JB. "I was three years old, dog-type age, which is multiplied by seven to make me 21, people-type age."

"Rule 4," I continued. "Contestant must be of good character and possess poise, personality, charm, beauty of face and figure." JB started to answer, but I interrupted.

"Don't bother telling me about the poise, etc., which you possess. But how about a bathing suit and sun dress?"

"I was born with both on," said JB, "and have never removed them."

"Rules 5 and 6," I went on, although I knew it was a losing battle. "Contestant must be in good health, have education equivalent to one year in high school, and no former contestant is eligible to enter."

Said JB: "I am so healthy it is disgusting; I have had education equivalent to 99 years on the chain gang; and I am not a former contestant and to get back to that bit about education the first word you taught me was 'no' and what better education could a prospective Miss Victoria have?"

"So all right," I agreed. "So how about Rule 7? Contestants may only enter under the sponsorship of an organization or club?"

"I am working on that," said JB, "and I expect to have an important announcement to make in the very near future."

Well, I tried. But it appears JB is, indeed, going to enter the Miss Victoria Contest.

Will Joe Despot of the Junior Chamber of Commerce please see that Judy Boots Streak is supplied with the required entry form?

B.C. Anthology Ex-Editor Files Damage Claim

Unstated damages are claimed from publishers McClelland and Stewart Ltd., in a writ filed in Supreme Court registry by T. K. Willis for his dismissal as executive editor of the B.C. Anthology being compiled for the centennial year.

The writ filed by lawyer Patrick J. Sinnott, acting on behalf of Mr. Willis, asked for payment of Mr. Willis' services as editor of the anthology.

The writ also declares that in accordance with a written agreement, Mr. Willis is entitled to a 3 per cent royalty on all copies of the anthology sold.

The civil suit arose when Mr. Willis was asked last month by the publishing company to resign as editor of the anthology.

He refused and then was allegedly dismissed from the office.

SUN DAZZLES WEATHER BOSS

bring dark glasses from Toronto where sun is rarity at this season. Mr. Mackie promises more sun with a little cloud for weekend, high of 55 Saturday. (Times Photo.)

Shortage of Personnel Hampers Long Range Weather Forecasts

Canada's weather service can provide long-range forecasts when sufficient trained personnel is obtained, Patrick McTaggart-Cowan, deputy director, said here today.

"We know how to produce accurate five-day forecasts," he said, "but we haven't sufficient manpower to follow through."

Mr. McTaggart-Cowan is here from his Toronto headquarters on a brief tour of western Canada's weather stations.

He said funds are available to add needed staff, but men with proper qualifications are hard to find.

"There is a good career waiting for any university graduate with a sound knowledge of mathematics and physics," he said. "We are aiming toward forecasts of up to 30 days, and we can achieve this if we can secure the staff."

Requests for longer weather forecasts are increasing daily, he said, and the weather service is anxious to meet the demands.

"We have a pilot team of two men and one woman, working along lines explored by the U.S. Weather Bureau," he said. "We know it can be done."

"To encourage recruits for our weather service, we are offering a 'pay while learning' deal," a person graduating from university with suitable credits will be taken on staff, and given a summer course at Carleton College, Ottawa, for added instruction in mathematics and physics.

"He will draw full pay during this period. If, at a later time, he wishes to earn an MA, he will be given a year's leave of absence, with pay."

And, after that, if he wishes a PhD, a second leave of absence with pay will be granted.

Arrangements have also been made with the RCAF to grant temporary commissions to meteorologists, to give them experience in the military field.

Mr. McTaggart-Cowan left today to return to eastern Canada.

'TRADE WINDS' WILL SAIL TO VICTORIA

Newest addition to the Royal Victoria Yacht Club fleet will be sailed here from Santa Barbara late this month.

The German-built ketch Passet (meaning Trade Winds) has been purchased by Jim Genge, who left this morning by car for California.

Crewing for him on the trip up-coast will be Tom and Roy Denny, Tom's son, Robert, and Mrs. Genge.

Passet is a 45-footer with auxiliary power.

Plan is to call at San Francisco northbound, then head out into the Pacific for 500 miles to take advantage of prevailing winds.

Tentative departure date from Santa Barbara is April 20, and the cruise will take from three to four weeks.

Week Remand In Bingo Case

Audrey Jorgenson, 5151 Cordova Bay, was charged in city police court today with keeping a common gaming house at 1417 Government, and was remanded without plea to next Thursday.

Police named her as operator of a bingo game at Victoria Whist and Bridge Club, in the basement of Westholme Hotel, which was raided by police March 28 at 10 p.m.

Players were mostly elderly persons and pensioners, police said; some of whom complained of losing large sums of money in games.

Lawyer Jack Gatehouse appeared for Mrs. Jorgenson.

City Nurses Will Attend Rome Parley

Eight Victoria nurses will attend the 11th International Council of Nurses congress in Rome, May 27 to June 1, it was announced today.

There will be nearly 250 Canadian nurses present, and the Canadian delegation will be fourth largest of the 60 nations to be represented. Some 3,000 nurses are expected to attend.

From Victoria will go Miss Elizabeth Riddell, superintendent of nurses for the Victoria Order of Nurses; Miss Monica Frich, director of public health nurses for the government; Miss Jean Harris, an industrial nurse with the RCN; Mrs. E. I. Stibbard, supervisor of the Gorge Chronic Hospital; Miss Elvira Nordland, hospital inspector and consultant, BCHIS; Mrs. J. Contini, formerly with the Victoria health department; Miss Lilla Wright, formerly with the RCAF, and Miss Elizabeth Layton, of the Saanich and southern Vancouver Island health unit.

As the matter stands, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt councils support the proposed new wing for Royal Jubilee Hospital as a Centennial project.

Esquimalt also supports development of Gorge Park as an alternative. Most city aldermen favor a youth centre with an ice surface near Memorial Arena.

The committee called a mass meeting April 25, of delegates from Greater Victoria clubs, church groups, civic and service organizations to outline their individual Centennial plans in order to co-ordinate activities. They will be asked to submit their programs in writing.

MLAs WILL HELP

"I sure do. I was disappointed to hear Greater Victoria Centennial Committee has been unable to recommend a joint project."

Discriminatory Treatment Claimed

Greater Victoria was proposed and will be placed on the agenda of the next meeting.

"It is strange that firemen and policemen are singled out for discriminatory treatment," said R. B. H. Sewell of Langford. "We can't say that they are holding up civil defence efforts because civil defence has no policy."

"Why should fire and police forces queue up for additional duties when even civil defence isn't sure what they should do?"

The control board authorized co-ordinator Peachey to approach fire and police chiefs in all municipalities for preliminary talks on the organization of a volunteer force.

He was told to report back to the board before taking the matter to the unions.

"About a year ago," Mr. Peachey said.

He added that the talks fell through because the chiefs' hands were tied.

"Who tied them?" the alderman asked.

"The unions," said Mr. Peachey.

Malahat to Stay Bumpy for Summer

Reconstruction of the Malahat Highway will not be completed this year, a department of highways official said today.

Work will continue this summer on the Mill Bay section and motorists will "just have to suffer a little more pain," the spokesman said.

The highways department is considering improving the Mill Bay cutoff road, which will be used as a detour.

"We will have the Malahat in as good shape as it was last summer," it was stated.

All sections of the new highway will be surfaced this year except the Mill Bay portion. There is an outside possibility it may be paved in the fall.

Herbert Bruch, Social Credit MLA for Esquimalt, charged at the recent legislature session that contractors on the Malahat were "dragging their feet."

He urged Highways Minister Gagliardi to "smarten them up."

Buck Volunteer Forces, View Royal Man Claims

Victoria police and fire unions are hindering expansion of civil defence services, it was charged today.

W. B. Cole of View Royal told a Civil Defence Control Board meeting here this morning it is impossible to train volunteer auxiliaries for disaster service due to union antagonism.

"They are afraid if we have a volunteer force it would weaken their position when it comes to bargaining for wage

He added that the talks fell through because the chiefs' hands were tied.

"The unions," said Mr. Peachey.

Thwarted by Unions—Peachey

Alderman J. Donald Smith demanded the remarks be withdrawn.

He suggested the board apologise to city police and firemen.

"Pure supposition," he said.

He said Mr. Cole "had no facts on which to base his charges."

They were "unfounded" and showed "a bad reflection on our two services."

Ald. Smith asked Civil Defence co-ordinator Roger Peachey.

"It is strange that firemen and policemen are singled out for discriminatory treatment," said R. B. H. Sewell of Langford. "We can't say that they are holding up civil defence efforts because civil defence has no policy."

Dr. Boak came to Victoria during the First World War as surgeon-lieutenant at the naval college, later Royal Roads.

At the war's end he established a practice in Esquimalt, later moving to the city. He held positions on the medical staffs of both Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals at various times.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Food Prices Are Dropping Now That Spring Has Come

By PENNY SAVER

In just 15 days, Easter will be here. Orders for decorated chocolate eggs and bunnies are being taken in town, and to avoid last-minute rushing about and possible disappointment, why not put in your order to your favorite candy store now? Other things to be bought right now, today, are vegetables for the weekend meals. While gathering up dinner-time foods on this shopping trip, you can peek into the candy store windows and decide which types of Easter egg decorations you prefer. During the next two weeks, I'll tell you of other Easter trimmings I've seen, but right now, on to the vegetables...

Prices on our favorite foods are starting to slide downwards in many cases with the change of seasons. I saw radishes selling at 10 cents a bunch, and green onions at two bunches for 19 cents. These are getting to be more like summertime prices. Mexican tomatoes are priced at 25 cents a tube, and extra large stalks of celery are a quarter. Young, tender asparagus is dropping in price, to 23 cents a pound, and clean, scrubbed Jerusalem artichokes are two pounds for a quarter. White turnips are two bunches for 39 cents, and carrots, by the bunch or package, are two for 25 cents. Broccoli is a popular vegetable right now, and costs 19 cents a pound.

An amazing color is house rhubarb, tangy and tasty that's just right for pies and puddings. It's yours for 25 cents a bunch.

More color... this time NOT in edible form. Deep golden daffodils, outdoor varieties, are selling at 18 cents a dozen, or two dozen for 35 cents. Large King Alfred daffs are 29 cents a dozen. The almost-orange bugle centres, contrasting with the bright leaves and foliage will look lovely on your dining room table. You can choose from a wide range of flowers in the markets right now. Tulips, stocks, narcissi, carnations, iris... all the thrilling colors and fragrances are selling at reasonable prices.

Something else to include in this food column today is maple sugar, in one-pound blocks. This is a treat anytime. You can buy a block for 98 cents. Maple syrup for French toast, hotcakes or waffles comes in tins at 95 cents, $1.19, $1.85 and $5.65.

On Etiquette

A thank you note from a book borrower:

I have borrowed a school book from a neighbor. He is 18 years old. I will have to return it, and would like to know if I should give him a gift. If so, what is the appropriate gift for him, or should I give him something to his parents instead?

Louise Davis Answers:
The nicest and most appropriate gift and one that the young man would appreciate most would be to write him a note of thanks. Here is an example: "Dear George, Many thanks for the loan of this book, which I am sure has helped my grade. I tried to take good care of it and hope that I didn't keep it too long. Sincerely, Patty." You have no other obligation to him or his parents, so do nothing more. It would not be proper for you to give a present, for it would be embarrassing to the boy and his parents. You would embarrass yourself too.

JAM INCREASES MP's SALARY

LONDON (CP)—Jane Chichester-Clark, wife of the Conservative member of Parliament for Londonderry, brews her own marmalade, bottles it and sells it to a well-known bakery shop in the Chelsea district.

Says Mrs. Chichester-Clark, who studied English at Cambridge and singing in Vienna: "It's expensive living in London and what I make helps with the problem of existing on an MP's salary."

A British member of Parliament earns about £1,500 ($4,200).

Mrs. Chichester-Clark has made up to 96 pounds of marmalade in one week. Her recipe is 10 oranges, four grapefruits, three lemons to 10 pounds of sugar, which produces 19 pounds of marmalade.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Fuzz on 3-Year-Old's Face Not Inherited

(The Friday Question Box)

Q.—"After this summer was over I noticed a large amount of white fuzzy hair on my three-year-old child's face and arms. What caused this? My mother-in-law has a lot of fuzz on her face. She is 64 years old. Could my child inherit this characteristic from her grandmother?"

A.—Your mother-in-law has hair on her face because her glandular system has changed at her age. Your child did not inherit this. The sun may have stimulated the growth. I imagine this will disappear, given time.

Q.—"Please tell me if you think I should lose some weight. I am 26 years old and have two children. I am large boned and weigh 155 pounds. I am 5 feet, 8½ inches tall. My measurements are bust 38, waist 27 and hips 40 inches. I think I should lose about five pounds."

A.—Considering your large frame I imagine that a five pound loss is about right. You should take hip-slimming exercises.

Q.—"I am 15 years old, 5 feet, 2 inches tall, and weigh 100 pounds. I have a small frame. I want to know if I should gain some weight."

A.—According to charts you are about 13 pounds underweight. However, since you have a small build a 5 to 10 pound gain probably would be a right for you. You should gain for health's sake.

Q.—"I wonder if you can help me find a new hairstyle that will be becoming to me. I have a long forehead and a long face. I can wear certain styles except for my chin which looks so long it is awful. I have been wearing bangs but am tired of them."

A.—Wear your hair flat on top with a centre part. It should be fluffed out at the sides to add width to your face. To compensate for the long chin wear your hair long enough. It should come an inch or so below the tip of the ears.

Q.—"I am 13 years old, 5 feet,

one inch tall, and weigh 94 pounds. My bust measures 30 inches, waist 25 and hips 32 inches. Are my measurements and weight okay? I have very thin legs from the thigh to the ankle. Could I take some exercise for them?"

A.—You should gain 5 to 8 pounds. Do the following exercise. Stand with your left side toward the wall. Place your left hand on the wall. Rise high on your left toe as you swing the right leg forward with a stiff knee. Lower right heel to floor and return right leg to place. Continue. Later, turn your right side toward the wall and do the same exercise rising high on the right toe, etc.

Melt butter or margarine in skillet. Pour off about half of butter and save. To butter in skillet add onion and celery; cook until tender. Stir in bread crumbs until butter is soaked up. ## McCann's CBC Role Challenged By CCF Whip

OTTAWA (CP)—CCF whip Stanley Knowles accused Revenue Minister McCann, Thursday of usurping the rights of parliament and its members by making representations to the publicly-owned CBC in connection with programming and budgeting matters.

Dr. McCann, who reports to parliament for the CBC, said his interpretation of his duties to parliament and the government includes the right to make representations to the CBC.

They debated the issue briefly during the Commons question period in the latest round of a continuing scrap over the question of representations to the CBC which, by law, is responsible only to parliament, not to the government.

However, the exchange was halted by Speaker Rene Beaudoin who said the question period was not the time to debate the matter.

Later, outside the Commons Mr. Knowles said he plans to raise the matter again when the government asks the House for interim supply, or for advances to enable the government to meet its bills during the summer election months.

Search of Beach Fails to Locate Missing Resident

A police search of the waterfront at low tide has failed to disclose a trace of an elderly man who disappeared from a nursing home at 1730 Hollywood Crescent early Sunday.

Late Tuesday afternoon another resident of the home found a suit coat and two pairs of eyeglasses on beach rocks at the rear of the home.

They were identified as property of the missing man, Ralph Baby, 71. Clarence Allen spotted them in a walk along the beach.

Building in City Shows Increase

Value of new construction in Victoria increased in March.

There were 589 permits issued last month and value of work started was $719,562. In March last year total value was $555,164.

Total of new building values for the first three months of 1957 is $2,046,987 compared with $1,619,077 in the same period of 1956.

Officials said the increase was due in part to the new federal government hydrographic survey wharf and the Canada Trust Building at View and Broad Streets.

Moves to Adopt Single Time Zone

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan legislature, in a vote which cut across party lines, Thursday adopted a recommendation that a modified, single time zone system be established in the province.

The vote was 28 to 21 with eight CCF and 13 Liberals in opposition. The three Social Credit MLAs sided with the other government members.

The recommendation, proposed by the legislative committee on municipal law, is that the province be placed on Mountain Standard Time in winter and Central Standard time in summer. At present Saskatchewan is split into irregular MST and CST zones with various communities adopting daylight time in summer.

Outside the House Premier Douglas said the matter now will have to be thrashed out by the cabinet. It would be impossible to make any change this year, since it would entail altering at least 20 statutes.

Bailiff Pushed Against Door, Cut by Glass

City bailiff Charles de Macedo was injured Wednesday night in a unique attack by an unidentified man.

He was checking the front door of a shop at 615 Fort in his capacity of bailiff about 11 p.m. when a man in a fawn coat pushed him through the door's glass panel.

Police took him to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated for cuts to the wrist and cheek.

Mr. de Macedo said his assailant, about five feet, nine inches, ran east on Fort, north on Broad and escaped.

Fruit Probe Told Evidence Was 'Hearsay'

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Charges of inefficiency, incompetence and negligence made against B.C. Fruit Processors were handed a setback Thursday before the MacPhee Royal Commission investigating B.C.'s fruit industry.

The sole witness produced by M. J. dePuyf, admitted he had no technical knowledge of the operation of the processors' juice plant, and that most of his information was of a "hearsay" nature. The witness was George Yochim, a former employee of the processors.

In addition, Dean E. D. MacPhee was informed that Mr. dePuyf's other witness, Cyril Weeks, dealers' service representative for B.C. Fruit Processors, declined to appear before the commission because he had no technical knowledge of the plant operation.

The only other witness to appear to support the East Kelowna charges was Peter Sperling, a former employee of the juice plant, who substantiated charges made by N. P. Casorso that "thousands of cases of canned goods... were dumped, covered by bulldozers and never mentioned in the balance sheet."

COMMISSIONER ANNOYED

Professor MacPhee, showing considerable annoyance at "hearsay" testimony, told Mr. dePuyf: "We are not trying to get hearsay evidence. It is of no use to the commission and only delays other proceedings."

The commissioner intimated that he would deal specifically with the dePuyf charges when he writes his report.

The dePuyf charges alleged that consumer demand for vinegar had dropped because processors had been unable to maintain a consistent strength; that errors had been made in processing glass cherries; that a large portion of the 1955 pie-filling pack had to be re-processed, and that the true figure of plant upkeep, equipment and maintenance and capital cost allowance was not shown in the financial statement.

Supreme Court to Rule On Sommers Bank Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP)—The examination of the bank records of former British Columbia lands and forests minister Robert Sommers was postponed Thursday pending an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Harvey Bowering, counsel for Sommers, told the British Columbia court of appeal that an application is being made before the Supreme Court of Canada to dispute the validity of the bank examination order.

Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan had given permission to Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy last Oct. 4 to examine three days' records of the bank accounts of Sommers, H. W. and J. M. Gray, Pacific Coast Services, C. D. Schultz and Co. Ltd., and B.C. Forest Products and Evergreen Lumber Co.

Sommers appeal from the order was dismissed by the court of appeal last Friday. When Sturdy arranged to begin investigations, Sommers counsel obtained a stay from the court of appeal.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were generally easier today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Offerings increased in all grains and there was a lack of aggressive commercial interest.

Export houses were buyers in flax and reports indicated some export business was developing.

Offerings increased and were in the form of hedges and U.S. selling. July and October contracts established seasonal lows.

Oats and barley had domestic support. Offerings were increased and there was evidence of United States selling in oats.

May and October barley contracts established seasonal lows.

Rye followed the lower trend of other grains. Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included: the United Kingdom 100,000 bushels, The Netherlands 145,000 and West Germany a small parcel lot.

Lakehead prices for class two IWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged.

STIRS WORLD OUTCRY

U.S. Senator
Demands Probe
Of Norman Death

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Richard Neuberger (Dem.-Ore.), Friday proposed a special Senate investigation into "circumstances of the publication" of internal security sub-committee charges against Canadian diplomat E. Herbert Norman. Norman, Ambassador to Egypt, killed himself in Cairo Thursday.

(From Times News Services)

From many parts of the free world today there came bitter reaction to Thursday's suicide of Canadian Ambassador to Egypt, E. Herbert Norman.

The viewpoints expressed were almost unanimous in condemning the action of the U.S. Senate's sub-committee on internal security for releasing testimony implying Mr. Norman had had Communist associations long after he had been cleared of such charges.

It was generally accepted that this action brought about his leap to death from a Cairo building.

Committee Under Fire in Washington

Even in Washington, DC, the U.S. capital, the committee was under fire.

The Washington Post and Times Herald charged the U.S. Senate internal security sub-committee is "directly responsible for the persecution" which may have led to the suicide of Mr. Norman.

In an editorial, the newspaper accuses the sub-committee of "a most meddlesome interference in an area where they have no competence at all" and said the tragic event "ought at last" to lead the U.S. Senate "to put an effective check upon the irresponsibility" of the sub-committee.

The Washington Evening Star takes the editorial view that Norman's death was "too tragic in itself for anybody to add to it with overwrought and grossly simplified interpretations blaming it on the Senate internal security sub-committee."

The Star suggests the sub-committee had shown "decidedly poor judgment" in making public "filmy hearsay evidence" involving Mr. Norman but said it was sure "our friends in proper perspective and not let it blight the good relations existing between our two countries."

The Post accompanied its editorial with a cartoon showing a skeleton reaching into a sub-committee file labelled "hearsay reports" and withdrawing a folder containing the name "Herbert Norman. The caption read "His Name Just Happened to Come Up."

The Post questioned the sub-committee's reasons for "dredging up in 1957" the "discredited" accusations which a Columbia University professor had made against Mr. Norman in 1951.

"What reason was there for making public, against the state department's expressed wishes, the transcript of this hearing held in executive session?"

"In a statement which attempts without the slightest sympathy to justify the callousness of his conduct, Mr. Morris (sub-committee counsel Robert Morris) says the testimony 'may have an important bearing on our internal security.'"

"It has no bearing whatever on our internal security. Mr. Morris and the internal security sub-committee have been guilty of a most meddlesome interference..."

RCAP Plans to Fly Ashes Home

In Ottawa the Canadian government has ordered a Royal Canadian Air Force plane out of London to Cairo to fly home the ashes of the late Canadian Ambassador.

Decision as to whether or not to make use of the RCAP aircraft was left to Mrs. Norman's wishes.

The Ambassador's widow has suffered a severe shock and was under medical care throughout Wednesday. The staff of the Canadian Embassy in Cairo, however, headed by A. R. Kilgour, the first secretary, was doing everything possible to facilitate the return of the Ambassador's ashes to Canada.

The Egyptian government has offered all possible aid.

Funeral services for Mr. Norman at Cairo will be held Saturday at St. Andrew's Church of Scotland.

The body of Mr. Norman then will be flown to Rome for cremation. Mrs. Norman will leave Cairo within a few days to return to Canada.

Meanwhile, the Canadian government has no intention of "sending any notes of any kind" to Washington in connection with the case, a spokesman for the prime minister's office said today.

An external affairs department official said the same thing. He pointed out that External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson summed up Canada's official attitude by saying, "There's no need to make an announcement."

Social Security Payments
Skyrocket Ottawa Outlays

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris today tabled in the Commons further supplementary estimates totalling $94,750,000 for 1957-58, bringing total federal expenditures for the current fiscal year to an all-time high of $5,334,000,000.

The supplementary estimates proposed today total $94,750,000 to cover budgetary proposals of increased social security payments and a boost in Maritime freight rates assistance.

The former all-time record was set in the 1943-44 war years when spending reached $5,322,000,000. The previous peacetime record, set last fiscal year ended March 31, was $5,157,000,000.

The new high this fiscal year includes about $475,000,000 in old age and other pensions not in effect when the wartime record was established.

Today's supplementary estimates included:

1. $24,500,000 for a $1-a-month increase to certain age groups of family allowance recipients.
2. $45,000,000 to cover a proposed $6-a-month increase to $46, for old-age pensioners 70 and over.
3. $3,000,000 for the federal government's 50 per cent share of a maximum $6 increase to $46 in old-age assistance to the

Full Pardon Asked

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lawyer Larry Hill said today a request has been sent to Ottawa for a full pardon for John Graham Bryson, 45, serving a jail term for a robbery in July, 1955. ## Snead Takes Lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Sam Snead, a three-time winner, forged a four-under-par 68 today to take the halfway lead in the Masters golf tournament with a score of 140. It appeared unlikely that any of the few remaining players on the course, including defending champion Jackie Burke Jr., could overtake him.

Stan Leonard, former Vancouver player, now of Lachute, Que., shot a 72 for a 147 two-round score.

Woman's Throat Cut

VANCOUVER (CP)—The body of an unidentified Chinese woman was found lying in a pool of blood today in a lane in Vancouver's East End. Police said the woman's throat had been cut and they believed it was suicide.

A 6½-inch knife was found in a cavity beside the telephone pole against which the woman lay slumped. Police said a trail of blood stretched about 75 yards from the woman's body.

JOINT PROJECT NOT DEAD

Civic Leaders
To Try Again
On Centennial

By PETE LOUDON

A new, top-level attempt was launched today to reach agreement on a mutual centennial project for Greater Victoria.

A "try-again" meeting by district municipal and government representatives will be called by Mayor Percy Scourrah. The action came hard on the heels of Greater Victoria Centennial Committee's decision Thursday night to abandon the joint scheme.

That committee, composed of aldermen and councillors and appointed representatives from Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich and Victoria, will limit itself now to planning 1958 celebrations.

MANY TO ATTEND

The new conference will be attended by the mayor, district reeves and members of the legislature.

The mayor said he would call the meeting when he was told a Times survey of elected officials showed general disappointment that no agreement had been reached so far.

"I would be in favor of exploring again the whole situation, this time at the reeves-mayor-member level. I think it would be a pity to go ahead with several dinky projects instead of one major one. I will try to get a committee together to work out something," the mayor stated.

WURTELE WILLING

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt had stated earlier: "I'd agree to appoint a new committee to go into this matter. I'm quite willing to sit in."

He said he felt it would be "crazy" to go ahead with separate projects. He doubted Esquimalt council would approve a separate project.

Problem facing the new group stems from a provincial government promise in 1955 to provide each municipality with a grant of 60 cents per capita for a centennial year project "of lasting value and significance."

In order to receive the grant each municipality must match it and the final choice of memorial must be approved by the B.C. cabinet.

It was proposed that in metropolitan areas, different municipalities should lump together their grants for a major project. A second grant, with no strings attached, is available for

Dock Strike
Threatens
London Tie-Up

LONDON (Reuters)—More than 1,500 key cargo checkers in the port of London today launched a wildcat strike which left 70 ships idle at docks along the Thames and threatened to paralyze the port.

The walkout, backing a dispute with a stevedoring firm, forced thousands of longshoremen out of work.

The cargo checkers decided Thursday night to strike in support of 160 colleagues at the Tilbury docks who stopped work Tuesday. Tilbury tally clerks claimed a stevedoring company there employed non-union labor.

Officials of the Transport and General Workers Union appealed to the strikers to return to work and warned their action endangered the industry's negotiating machinery.

Defence Ends Case
With Dramatic Plea

LONDON (CP)—The defence for Dr. John Bodkin Adams rested its case with dramatic suddenness today and appealed to the jury to free the 58-year-old society doctor accused of murder.

The trial has been adjourned for the weekend. It is expected to go to the jury late Monday after the prosecution finishes summing up.

Chief defence counsel Geoffrey Lawrence argued that Adams was only trying to "ease the misery" of the widow he is charged with drugging to death to inherit a chest of silver and a Rolls Royce car.

Leaving the jury of 10 men and two women in Old Bailey courtroom, the defence lawyer told in a quiet voice why he did not put Adams into the witness box to tell his story of the death of Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell in Eastbourne in 1950.

Emphasizing the "strain" which he said Adams had been living under since his arrest five months ago, Lawrence declared he had decided against requiring him to "endure the ordeal" of testifying.

Lawrence said Adams' records on the Morrell case had been destroyed and that by taking the stand he would have been asked "to cast back his memory over the Gulf of six years."

"At every stage there would have been the terrible realization that one failure of recollection, one inaccuracy, however innocent, would be seized on and might well be put before you as an indication of his guilt."

Lawrence said the issue was not whether Adams was a "good or bad" doctor in prescribing drugs but whether he is guilty of murder.

"Pause and think," Lawrence appealed to the jurors. "If this doctor for some diabolical reason, having looked after this old widow for two years or more, suddenly made up his mind, and this is the prosecution's case, to kill her, God knows there was no reason."

"Death was inevitable, and you may think imminent," Lawrence added that what Adams is accused of was murdering with malice aforethought an old woman "of 81 years of age who was a patient at a time when she was already dying and had no more than possibly a very few weeks or a few days to live."

"Is not that a most extraordinary case, that a doctor should be accused of murdering one of his patients when she was already dying? With no intervention on his part, the end was inevitable."

Mrs. Morrell died in November, 1950. The body was cremated as she asked in her will and the ashes were scattered over the English Channel off Eastbourne where Dr. Adams had a prosperous practice among retired wealthy old folk.

Lawrence had called only two witnesses for the defence, a medical expert and a nurse. The trial, the longest in history of Old Bailey, is in its 15th day.

Lawrence opened the case for the defence only two days ago after the prosecution, led by Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, called a string of 19 witnesses to support its accusation that Adams murdered the bed-ridden widow with an overdose of drugs.

The bespectacled, portly doctor sat impassively in the prisoner's dock as his lawyer opened his final address to the jury.

Lawrence stood up, flung back his gown, thrust one hand in his trouser pocket and rested the other on a pile of legal volumes and notes.

The jury members sat motionless, their eyes rivetted on the bewigged lawyer as he told them their duty would be clear on the evidence already produced.

"We need not take up your time, or anybody else's time in calling any further evidence," he stated.

WIFE-KILLING SUSPECT
SUICIDES IN PRISON

MONTREAL (CP)—Edward Alexander Ven-groff, 41, charged Wednesday with the revolver shooting of his wife on a busy mid-town street, was found hanged today in his cell at Bordeaux jail.

One of his last requests had been for permission to attend the funeral of his 30-year-old estranged wife, shot Tuesday while walking to her job in Royal Victoria Hospital.

His wife, who left him two months ago saying she wanted a divorce, died an hour after being hit by four bullets, fired at close range. Before losing consciousness she gasped out a telephone number which led police to her husband.

Background of Events in Norman Suicide

WASHINGTON (UP)—How did an ambassador of a friendly country Canada's E. Herbert Norman become involved in hearings of a senate subcommittee charged with investigating the administration of U.S. security laws?

The story began several years ago when congressional committees began delving into the Communist conquest of China after Second World War. Charges were aired that certain career state department officials did not oppose the Chinese Communists strongly, and therefore helped pave the way for their seizure of China.

Carrying this forward the senate internal security subcommittee, which has done much of the past investigating, now has begun questioning state department officials in the Middle East who were named in the earlier inquiries.

For example, Rep. Walter H. Judd (R-Minn.) testified last May about personnel serving in the American Embassy in China in 1944.

BACKED COMMUNISTS

He said that when he stopped in Chungking at that time, junior members of the staff were following what "later proved to be the Communist party line"—they wanted to ditch Chiang Kai-Shek and back the Communists to fight Japan.

"It was common conversation," said Judd, "that the leaders were the so-called four Johns: John Carter Vincent, John Stewart Service, John Paton Davies and John Emmerson."

Vincent, Service and Davies have been investigated at length and are now out of the state department. John K. Emmerson is now counsellor—No. 2 man—in the American Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon. He was brought back to testify in a closed session March 12 and the record of the hearing was made public March 14.

Emmerson was asked about Norman. He said, he had known the Canadian since 1940 but never heard anything to indicate that he was a Communist.

REP. WALTER H. JUDD

But sub-committee counsel Robert Morris said the group had "quite a few security reports which have a great deal of information to the effect that he (Norman) is a Communist."

And why was Emmerson asked about Norman?

The sub-committee is understood to have several references to Norman in its files. In 1951, Prof. Karl Wittfogel of Columbia University testified that a young Canadian named Norman belonged to a New York Communist cell in prewar years.

A former state department official, Eugene Dorman, had testified that Emmerson and Norman were close associates in Japan in 1946.

HEADED UN DELEGATION
Norman by 1951 was head of Canada's UN delegation and of the American section of the external affairs ministry.

Morris also said at the March 12 hearing that Norman was once secretary of "a Communist organization" known as "American Friends of the Chinese People" and later executive secretary of its Canadian affiliate.

Morris then read a security report from an unidentified agency which said Norman associated with a Japanese named Tsuru Shigeto, who is now a lecturer at Harvard University.

The report said the FBI arrested Tsuru in 1942 to send him home to Japan and that Norman approached the FBI as a high-ranking Canadian official and tried to take custody of Tsuru's papers.

Morris quoted the FBI as reporting the papers included a 1937 letter about a Marxist study group at Harvard which discussed a paper on "American Imperialism" by E. H. Norman.

Morris also quoted the report as saying that Norman was identified in February, 1940, as a member of the Communist party.

Morris insisted after Norman's death that the subcommittee was not investigating the Canadian diplomat, though about half the questioning of Emmerson related to Norman.

Among Tsuru's papers was a letter about the study group addressed to William T. Parry, now an instructor at the University of Buffalo. The committee plans to call Parry to testify April 22.

Tsuru testified last week that he never joined the Communist party, though he admitted he acted, spoke and wrote like a Communist in 1936-37 while a student at Harvard.

He explained Norman's effort to get his papers as an effort by Norman, a Japanese scholar, to pick up some Japanese history books that Tsuru had left behind.

Dr. Karl Heinrich Niehl of New York City, who allegedly helped draft some of the papers found in Tsuru's apartment, invoked the fifth amendment 44 times before the sub-committee Thursday.

He refused to answer all questions about Communism, including whether he is or was a Communist.

After the first release of Emmerson's testimony and Morris' charge about Norman, the Canadian government protested, and the state department asked the subcommittee not to bring up Norman's name in public again.

Canada said Norman had been cleared of the charges. The subcommittee shortly released more testimony in which Emmerson made some corrections in his earlier statements. But he repeated that he had never heard Norman say anything indicating the Canadian was a Communist.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

ON NORMAN'S DEATH

From British United Press

Canadian newspaper editorial comment on the death of Canadian Ambassador E. Herbert Norman in Cairo Thursday, follows:

Montreal Herald—"One is moved to wonder how many other people have been driven close to the same final point of despair by these senate sub-committee proceedings? How many equally innocent Americans have suffered character and career assassination at these hands? What happened in Cairo was murder by slander indeed."

Montreal Star—"Once fear enters the heart of man, all balance, and much decency flies out of it. It was fear—the curse of our age—which destroyed Herbert Norman, our Ambassador to Cairo. These relentless inquisitors in the U.S. Senate have much to answer for. Each time they have struck the target they have smeared and besmirched a score of innocents. More than this they have created an atmosphere of distrust and fear which, again and again, has paralyzed policy and evoked international distrust."

Vancouver Herald—"... He was a victim of the smear ... Herbert Norman, Canadian Ambassador to Egypt, died because United States politicians had, on the flimsiest of evidence, called him a Communist. ... It was the deliberations of other people, far removed from his home, that caused him the mental anguish that led him, a sensitive being, to hurt himself to his death. This day, the smear technique reached its highest mark."

Montreal Gazette—"The most sinister science of the modern world is the science of disintegration. Of this science Dr. Herbert Norman was a victim. And it is a strange thing that this is the very science the Communists have developed to the highest peak of perfection. And yet some of those who claim to fight Communism have resorted to the same method."

Toronto Globe and Mail—"Canada's Ambassador to Egypt took his life in Cairo because liars and calumniators persisted in branding him as a Communist. No proofs were offered, no evidence brought forward."

Winnipeg Free Press—"Mr. Norman suffered the fate of many other innocent people. Suspicion, once aroused, clung to his name like an odious fog. ... When a man is destroyed by others in this cowardly fashion, murder by slander is the only proper verdict."

Ross Munro in the Vancouver Province—"I always thought he was one of the best men in the Canadian diplomatic service. He was a scholar, an intellectual and ... a man of great courtesy. He could not understand the outrage perpetrated against him in Washington. The Senate subcommittee killed a fine Canadian servant."

Coast Guard Saves Disabled Fishboat

SEATTLE (AP)—A U.S. Coast Guard cutter took the disabled Seattle fishing vessel, Traveler in tow Thursday night off Vancouver Island.

The vessel called for assistance earlier Thursday when a broken connecting rod disabled the engine 20 miles south of Estevan Point, off the west coast of the Island.

Four men are aboard the $38,000, 65-foot craft. Its owner is Gunnar Ildhus and the operator is Sigurt Aarvik, both of Seattle.

The coast guard said the cutter McLane was expected to reach Neah Bay, Wash., with the Traveler early this afternoon.

BOMB

front door of the Club-Mecca by three men who had been ejected earlier when they tried to dance with one of the cocktail bar's regular woman customers.

Assistant Fire Chief R. A. Williams said the men sloshed a bucket of gasoline, or some other highly inflammable liquid, onto the floor and then threw a match in after it.

"It went up like a blowtorch," said the bartender, Larry Fenton, 24, who escaped uninjured out the back door.

Others weren't that lucky. One male customer bolted into a corner where firemen later found his blackened, charred body.

Two other bodies were found crumpled in one of the cafe's four booths. Bodies of two other customers were found in the washroom, apparently overcome by smoke.

Inside, the small cafe was a blackened ruin. The 20-foot-long bar was a charred wreck. Shattered, blackened bottles stood in front of a smoke-obscured mirror.

FLEE THROUGH GUNFIRE
The three men who threw the improvised "Molotov cocktail" escaped in a car amidst a barrage of gunfire from a passer-by. Vernon Waggy, 24, told police he was walking down the street when he saw the men begin running as the explosion and flames shattered the front of the cafe.

"I pulled out a .32-calibre automatic which I carry for protection and fired at them—I think I hit one," Waggy said. Police said there were three bullet holes in a parked car in front of the cafe.

Art Hartner said he was driving home when he saw the cocktail lounge belch flames onto the sidewalk.

"The whole place was a wall of flame and I saw a girl stumble out on the sidewalk," Hartner, a truck driver, said. "She was all on fire, her hair, her clothes, even her shoes."

"I wrapped her in my coat and tried to beat out the flames as she cried: 'Why did they do it? What about my children?'"

The woman tentatively identified by police as Jackie McGinnis, in her early 20s, was dead on arrival at hospital.
